By Telegraph to the POST-DISPATCH.

BALL GROUNDS, ST. LOUIS, October 10.—The great series of base ball games for the championship of the world between the St. Louis Browns and the Detroit Club opened to-day to a big crowd and wet weather. As early as 2:30 o'clock the crowd began to come out and a good portion of the bleaching boards were occupied. The rain began to fall over the grounds at 2 o'clock, and came in big drops which were few in number but sufficient to be very disagreeable. The grounds were wet and there was some mud on the base tracks when the Detroits stepped on the field to practice. There was a crowd of about four thousand people present, which was increasing all along. The Wolverines were greeted with a rousing cheer, which they acknowledged by raising their caps.

THE BATTERIES

announced for the game were: Getzein and Bennett, and Caruthers and Bushong.

THE BATTING ORDER

was as follows: Detroit—Richardson, 3b; Twitchell, l.f.; Rowe, ss.; Thompson, r.f.; White, 1b.; Dunlap, 2b.; Bennett, c.; Hanlon, c.f.; Getzein, p.

The Browns batted in the following order: Latham, 3b.; Gleason, ss.; O'Neill, l.f.; Comiskey, 1b.; Caruthers, p.; Foutz, r.f.; Welch, c.f.; Robinson, 2b., and Bushong, c.

When the Browns appeared on the field in their new suits they were applauded to the echo. By this time the grand stand and bleaching-boards had filled up and the people were still coming. It was estimated that at least 6,000 people were present. The bell rang for the first game, and the Detroits took the field. It was decided to have Kelly and Gaffney both umpire, Kelly on the bases and Gaffney on balls and strikes. Play was called, and Latham stepped to the bat.

THE GAME

began amid great excitement and in the midst of a dense silence.

FIRST INNING.

For the Browns, Latham made three strikes and then hit a clean liner to right for a single. He stole second with a desperate slide. Gleason secured first on balls. Latham and Gleason advanced a base each on a wild pitch. Latham scored on O'Neill's clean, safe hit to center, Gleason going to third. Comiskey flew out to White. Here Latham began to coach. Gleason scored on Caruthers' hit to right center, O'Neill going to second. O'Neill and Caruthers advanced a base on Foutz's sacrifice bunt, and Welch went out on Getzein's assist.

For Detroit, Richardson fouled out to Bushong, who made a splendid catch near the stand. Twitchell went out by Robinson's assist to first, and Rowe followed suit. No runs.

SECOND INNING.

For the Browns, Robinson got his base on balls, but Bushong fouled out and Robinson was thrown out at first. Latham hit safe to left, Gleason was hit by the pitcher and trotted to first, but Dunlap caught O'Neill's fly.

For Detroit, Thompson struck out. White flew out to O'Neill. Robinson's assist retired Dunlap. No runs.

THIRD INNING.

For the Browns, Rowe's error got Comiskey safely to first. Caruthers flew out to Rowe and Comiskey stole second. Foutz struck out and so did Welch. No run.

For Detroit, Gleason's assist retired Bennett and Hanlon died the same death. Getzein got his base on balls and Richardson flew out to Welch.

FOURTH INNING.

For St. Louis, Robinson fanned out. Bushong hit a safe liner to center. Latham foul-tipped out. Gleason hit to Richardson, who threw wild to first, and Bushong got third on the error. O'Neill flew out to Dunlap.

For Detroit, Twitchell hit to Latham and was retired at first. Rowe hit to Robinson and was shut off at the same place. Thompson hit safe to pitcher, but White flew out to O'Neill.

FIFTH INNING.

For the Browns, Comiskey made a safe bunt and went to second on a wild throw of Getzein. Caruthers' safe hit advanced him to third. Caruthers stole second. Foutz fouled out to Thompson, Comiskey scoring on the play, Caruthers going to third. Welch hit to Rowe, who fielded Caruthers out at home, but Welch got to third in the interim, and scored on Robinson's three-bagger to left. Robinson scored on Bushong's safe hit to first. Latham hit to Richardson, who threw wild, letting Bushong score and Latham go to third. Richardson's assist retired Gleason. Four runs.

FOR DETROIT.

Dunlap hit to Caruthers, and died at first. Gleason's assist retired Bennett, and Hanlon died by the same process.

SIXTH INNING.

For the Browns, O'Neill hit for two bases over Dunlap's head, and Comiskey got to first on five balls. Getzein's muff of Caruthers' pop fly let Robert reach the base safely, thus filling the bases. Foutz hit to Rowe forcing O'Neill out at home. Welch fouled out. Dunlaps assist then retired Robinson. No runs.

For Detroit—Getzein hit safe to left center. Richardson flew out to Welch and Twitchell doubled Getzein.

SEVENTH INNING.

For the Browns, Bushong got his base on balls, and Latham hit safe to Rowe. Gleason flew out to Dunlap who doubled Bushong at second and O'Neill flew out to the same man.

For Detroit—Rowe fouled out to Latham. Robinson's assist stopped off Thompson, and White foul-tipped out.

EIGHTH INNING.

For the Browns—Comiskey flew out to Thompson. Getzein's assist retired Caruthers. Getzein's error let Foutz go to first, but his assist retired Welch.

For Detroit—Dunlap flew out to Foutz, Bennett to Gleason and Hanlon to Latham.

NINTH INNING.

For the Browns—Robinson fouled out to Twitchell. Rowe's assist retired Bushong, and Latham flew out to Twitchell.

For Detroit, Getzein hit for two bags. Richardson flew out to Foutz and Getzein scored on Twitchell's safe hit to first, but Rowe doubled Twitchell ending the game.

A CENTENNIAL SERMON.

Dr. Niccolls to Represent the Presbytery—A Probable Baptist Pastor—A Supper.

The preachers got down to business at the meetings this morning. The Presbyterians especially had their hands full. The matter of giving a farewell testimonial supper to Revs. J. J. Marks, D. D., and P. H. K. McComb, who are about to leave for other parts, was brought up and left to a committee consisting of Revs. George E. Martin, A. N. Hollifield and J. B. Brandt, with authority to select time and place. The approach of the centennial season was referred to, and on motion Rev. Dr. S. J. Niccolls was requested to preach in the next few weeks a sermon on the "History of Presbyterianism in This Section." The duty has been accepted by Dr. Niccolls, and the discourse will be delivered at the Second Church some time next month, the address to be for the Presbytery. Rev. Dr. J. H. Brookes gave a report about the German Theological Seminary at Dubuque, Io., and recommended Rev. Josiah Milligan, who was present, as worthy of recognition in his appeals for the institution. Dr. Niccolls, in behalf of the Evangelical Alliance, presented the plan of canvassing and districting the city to arouse interest among the non-church going. The subject was debated briefly but no action was taken. One of the pleasantest things about the meeting was the reappearance after a dangerous illness, of Rev. Dr. Vander Lippe of the First German church, who looks as strong as ever. No reference or allusion was made to the Veiled Prophet's parade.

The Southern Methodists held their first session for 1887-1888. Presiding-Elder Finney was elected President and Rev. J. D. Hammond, D. D., Secretary. Centenary Church reported eleven applicants and nine admissions, eight by letter and one by profession. Rev. J. H. Early announced that he would begin permanent work at St. Paul's this week. Cook Avenue Church reported three admissions by profession and four by letter. Rev. W. E. Boggs of Poplar Bluff, and A. A. Godbey, A. M., were present, and the former gave an encouraging outlook of the work in his new field.

The Baptist pastors heard the usual Sunday reports, which were of a hopeful tone. The announcement of the people of the Fourth Church was to the effect that they hoped to keep Rev. W. H. Smith of Birmingham, Ala., who preached yesterday, as permanent pastor.

The Christian pastors held no meeting, nearly all being absent at Fulton, where J. H. Garrison opens the State Missionary Convention to-night with an address. The Methodists had an informal gathering.

The National Farmers' Congress.

By Telegraph to the POST-DISPATCH.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., October 10.—The Governor to-day appointed the following gentlemen to represent the State at the National Farmers' Congress to be held at Chicago November 10, 11 and 12: At large, Hon. The Exchange Directors.

The Directors of the Merchants' Exchange held a meeting this afternoon and elected twenty new members by transfer. The President was authorized to appoint a delegation to attend the water-ways convention at Quincy October 13 and at Memphis October 20 and 21. The Secretary was ordered to obtain a full and complete cable report of the London ann Liverpool markets. The Secretary and Treasurer presented his vurrterip report, showing receipts from January 1 to October 1, $61,314.55; expenditures, $52,244; balaace, $9,070.12. The Treasurer reported that 2,748 members had paid dues and 564 were delinquent. He was authorized to purchase $3,000 of 4 per cent bonds for the surplus.

GRANITE--BI-METALLIC.

HOW THE PROPOSED MINE CONSOLIDATION IS REGARDED.

The Bi-Metallic People Would Like to Put in Their Property at Half the Value of the Granite Mountain—Views of Stockholders on the Subject—The Granite Mountain to Be Developed Through Bi-Metallic Ground.

The publication in the SUNDAY POST-DISPATCH of the announcement that the Granite Mountain and Bi-Metallic Mining Companies would probably consolidate created quite a stir in mining circles. The matter was generally talked about among the brokers on Saturday, but outside of that circle the SUNDAY POST-DISPATCH brought the first news to those interested. The matter was generally discussed among the stockholders of the two companies yesterday and to-day, and stockholders in other mining enterprises also talked it over with much interest. The most general topic of speculation was the proposed basis of consolidation. There is no doubt whatever that the two companies are anxious to consolidate if a satisfactory basis can be agreed upon. The Bi-Metallic is practically owned by three men, Chas. Clark and Chas. McLure of St. Louis and Dr. J. M. Merrill of Montana. Mr. Clark is the only one of these three gentlemen in the city who has expressed himself in favor of a consolidation, provided the Granite Mountain people will come down a little in their ideas of the value of their property. The Bi-Metallic trustees hold their annual meeting on the 25th, and the Granite Mountain trustees meet for organization on the day following. It is not at all unlikely that the matter will be submitted to the trustees at these meetings, although unless some understanding can be arrived at in advance consideration may be postponed for a time.

THE BI-METALLIC BASIS.

It is understood that the basis of consolidation for which the Bi-Metallic is holding out is the issue of 200,000 shares of Granite Mountain stock for the 200,000 shares of Bi-Metallic. This would be putting the Granite Monntain into the deal at $22,000,000 and the Bi-Metallic at $11,000,000—in other words, it would elevate the price of Bi-Metallic stock from $30 to $55. The Granite Mountain capital stock is now 400,000 shares of $25 each. Under the proposed arrangement for consolidation the Bi-Metallic stock would be wiped out and the Granite Mountain capital stock would be increased to 600,000 shares of $25 each. The Granite Mountain mill is now turning out about $250,000 a month, of which $200,000 is devoted to the regular dividend. Under the present policy of adding to the surplus each month, the dividend would have to be reduced to 35 cents a share, or to 25 cents with an extra dividend of 25 cents every other month. The Granite Mountain Company, however, has a surplus of about $200,000 now on hand. With this money the milling plant could be largely increased. If the Company was crowded for room in its present quarters, it could utilize the mill-site of the Bi-Metallic Company on Douglas Creek. The Bi-Metallic has one of the best mill-sites in the country. With an increased milling capacity the earnings of the company could be very quickly increased, and the dividend on 600,000 shares be raised to the figure now paid on 400,000 shares.

LOUIS FUSZ,

one of the big Granite Mountain holders, is also a holder of Bi-Metallic stock. When asked this morning what he thought of the proposed consolidation, he said: "I have heard the matter talked about a good deal among the stockholders. I think that as the two companies are on the same lode and adjoining, it would be a measure of economy to put them under one management. The only thing that stands in the way is a question of value. If the Bi-Metallic people have the vein they are now working in the western part of their ground, then the advantage of taking them in on a basis of one to two would be with the Granite Mountain. If they have not this vein in the western end of their ground the apvantage of the arrangement would be with the Bi-Metallic."

Jas. Campbell, who is a stockholder in both the Granite Mountain and the Bi-Metallic, said: "I think that one to two would be a fair basis of consolidation for the two companies."

Other stockholders quoted Superintendent Plummer of the Granite Mountain as favoring the consolidation.

There is a great deal of speculation in buying a piece of property like the Bi-Metallic, only partly developed. The Granite Mountain people would undoubtedly have to pay more than the commercial value for it, for at the commercial value the present owners of the Bi-Metallic prefer taking their own risks. The Granite Mountain Company, had an opportunity less than eighteen months ago, to buy the Bi-Metallic ground at a cheap figure, but the trade was not made. When the Granite Mountain Company made up its mind that it wanted the Bi-Metallic property at the figure named, the Bi-Metallic people had raised the figure a little and the trade again fell through. Jno. R. Lionberger is credited with preventing the purchase of the Bi-Metallic property for $100,000.

TUNNEL RIGHT-OF-WAY.

The principal advantage of consolidation to the Granite Mountain Company at present would be the advantage in developing its property through tunnels run through the Bi-Metallic ground. Under the mining laws of the United States, the owner of a piece of property has a right to tunnel through a neighbor's ground to get at the ore in his own mine. Thus the Granite Mountain Company can go down into the Bi-Metallic's Blaine claim and run a tunnel through on the Granite Mountain lode. The Bi-Metallic Company would ask nothing better than this, as it would develop the Bi-Metallic ground at the expense of the Granite Mountain. This is not likely to be done, although should the proposed consolidation fail through here is no doubt that the Granite Mountain will eventually be developed through Bi-Metallic ground and that the bulk of expense will be borne by the Granite Mountain.

BI-METALLIC SHIPPING.

The Bi-Metallic Company has ordered the superintendent to resume the shipment of ore. About 1,000 tons are now on the dump. The ore will be hauled to Philipsburg and thence shipped to Omaha for treatment. The Bi-Metallic has not shipped any ore since an early day in April.

ARRESTED FOR MURDER.

Two Men Accused of a Terrible Crime—Committed Suicide—Missouri Matters.

FARMINGTON, October 10.—J. McCarver and Abe Gordon have been arrested for the murder of George Stone whose dead body was found Friday morning, near the Madison County Line. The two men deny the murder and say that they left Stone in the woods, because he was too drunk to take home.

SHELBYVILLE, October 10.—Mrs. Fred Bortcher, wife of a young farmer living near here, committed suicide yesterday by taking carbolic acid. Illness and despondency were the causes.

A GIRL'S SHAME.

ALICE CAFFIN, SEVENTEEN AND WAYWARD, RESTORED TO HER FATHER.

Policeman Thornton Badly Mixed Up in Her Disappearance—The Girl Involves Two Other Officers in Her Escapade—A Story Full of Sadness Told By Alice in the Holdover—A Life Wrecked in Its Almost Incipiency.

Officer James F. Thornton of the Fifth District is in another scrape, and this time he is very apt to lose his star. Charges of conduct unbecoming an officer have been preferred against him, and he has been suspended to await the result of his trial before the Board. The trouble grows out of the case of Alice Caffin, the 17-year-old girl who was taken from a disreputable house yesterday afternoon by the police. Yesterday morning the girl's father, C. Caffin, a locksmith at No. 3410 Olive street, called at the Four Courts to see Detective Archambeault. He asked the latter what he knew about his (Caffin's) daughter, and the detective replied that he did not know her at all. Then the father showed a letter written by his daughter in which she mentioned taking dinner with Detectives Hobbs and Archambeault. The letter was addressed: "Officer J. F. Thornton, No. 3128 Clark avenue, St. Louis, Mo.," and was dated "Moberly, Mo., October 3, 1887." The girl had been away from home for three weeks, and wrote this letter to the officer to secure his assistance in getting her back. It was written in an excellent hand, the girl being a graduate of the Central High School, but was such a foolish letter as might be expected of one of her age. In it she boasted of the fine time she was having and the fine clothes she was wearing, but stated that she wanted to return home if she could do so without having her parents place her in a convent or other similar institution. She also stated in it that she had been misled by a woman in high life.

Yesterday Thornton handed the letter to her father. It was soiled considerably and had evidently been in the officer's pocket some days. In her reference to dining with Hobbs and Archambeault she stated that before leaving the city she had quite a time, and cited her experience with the detectives to show that while they might be able to catch thieves she was "too slick" for them. Immediately after receiving the letter her father hastened to the Four Courts to see Archambeault. The latter was naturally very much exercised over the unwarranted use of his name and both he and Detective Hobbs declared that they had and would not know her if they saw her on the street. Archambeault stated, however, that some days ago Officer Thornton met him on the street and asked him if he knew the girl. He replied in the negative, and Thornton remarked that she appeared to be afraid of him and Hobbs and to have an idea they were after her to arrest her. The detective told him he had never heard that she was wanted. Then Thornton told him that the girl was at 2023 Chestnut street, and Archambeault made a note of the fact thinking he might some day need it. Yesterday when her father came to him, he told the old gentleman that he could find the girl for him and asked permission of Chief of Detectives O'Neill, to bring her in as he wanted an opportunity to prove that what she wrote about him was not true. Both he and Officer Hobbs went after the girl. A call at No. 2023 Chestnut street developed the fact that she had been there about a week, but had left and gone to Mollie Klineworth's house on North Ninth street. That place was next visited and she was found there and taken to the Four Courts. She had been there since Thursday.

At the Four Courts she admitted that she knew neither Archambeault nor Hobbs, and that what she had written about them was false. She had merely used their names because by so doing she thought she would throw her father off her track. When asked how using their names in that manner would accomplish the purpose, she merely stated that she did not know, but she thought it would, because he would think she was too smart for the police and that it was useless to have them hunt her. She said the officers' names had been given her by Cora—The latter, she also stated, was the "woman in high life" whom she referred to as having misled her. Cora is a girl no older than herself, but is well known about the city and to the police. She can hardly be said to be a woman in high life, although her father is a member of an old and respected family here. The Caffin girl stated further that she had left home yesterday. After spending two nights at the Dorris Mansion, she met Officer Thornton on the third day. He was a good friend of hers and she went to him. He rented a room for her for a week at No. 216 South Broadway, and supplied her with a meal ticket. She would say nothing against the officer, however, declaring that he was a gentleman and had always acted as such toward her. While she occupied the room he had rented for her there had been nothing improper in their relations. After leaving the room she entered a disreputable house at No. 2023 Chestnut street, and after remaining there a week went to the house where she was found.

The parents of the wayward girl were sent for and called at the Four Courts to see her. They had intended placing her in the House of the Good Sheperd, but afterward decided to permit her to remain in the holdover for the night. This morning again called at the Four Courts to see her, and had a rather unsatisfactory interview with her. She told him that she would go home and remain there if she was given her own way and permitted to go out whenever she pleased without being watched and questioned. The poor old man was in a quandary what to do with her. She will be 18 years of age in nine months, and he does not think she could be reformed in a stay of that time in the House of the Good Shepherd. He says he placed her there once before, but it resulted in naught. After consulting the police, he determined to take her home and endeavor to get her to leave her present wayward course. Before she was taken away Capt. Fruchte of the Fifth District was called to the Four Courts and took the statement of the girl. On this statement he will frame charges against Thornton and bring the officer before the Board.

The exposure has created quite a sensation among the police. What makes matters very bad for Thornton is the fact that the letter shows that he was in the scheme with the girl to deceive her father. She was never out of the city, and the letter which Thornton showed her father was written in St. Louis and dated from Moberly to deceive the father. Thornton, in order to carry out the deception, had torn off all the postmark, except the "Mo.," from the envelope, and alleged that it had been mailed in Moberly. Thornton's action in this matter gives the color of truth to the whole story of the girl and is very apt to cost him his star.

Thornton will be remembered as the officer who got into trouble about six weeks ago by engaging in a rough-and-tumble fight with a citizen. The man was a young teamster whom Thornton had up in the Police Court on a charge of resisting him. At the trial Miss Mamie Hurt, a young lady to whom Thornton is engaged to be married, testified against the teamster, she having been an eye-witness to the trouble. The man was fined, and he afterward stated to various people that the young lady had sworn falsely against him. This came to Thornton's ears, and on his Sunday off he and another officer hunted up the fellow and brought him to the saloon and grocery kept by the father of his intended, on Argyle avenue, near the Missouri Pacific tracks. There the young man was confronted by Miss Mamie, who was brought down from up-stairs, where the family reside. He admitted having stated that she had sworn falsely against him, and asserted that he was still of that opinion. Then Thornton and he came to blows, and the young man's friends claim that the other officer also took a hand in the fight, assisting Thornton. This was denied, however, by Thornton and the other officer and by the Hart family. Thornton also alleged that the other man struck him first, but this was contradicted by the teamster and his friends. Although neither officer was on duty at the time, both had on their uniforms. At the trial before the Board they were let go with a reprimand. It is feared, however, that the present complication into which Thornton has got himself, will result in the loss of his sweetheart in addition to the loss of his star.

ALICE CAFFIN

is rather small, being scarcely over 5 feet tall. She is possessed of more than the average good looks, though hardly beautiful. Her eyes are a bright grey, her hair a dark chestnut and her complexion olive. She wore when arrested, a plain blue woolen dress, and a red wooley jacket with shirt front. Although still very young, she is quite hardened, and at no time did she display the slightest emotion. On the contrary, she was always cold and defiant.

A GENERAL DECLINE.

Monthly Crop Report of the Department of Agriculture.

WASHINGTON, D. C., October 10.—The statistical report of the Department of Agriculture makes an increase of only half of 1 per cent in the condition of corn. The past month has been very generally favorable, but the status of a large part of the crop was fixed at the date of the previous report. The general average of condition is 72.8, instead of 72.3. The average of the seven surplus States is 64.9 instead of 64.2 in September. This is a lower condition than has ever been reported, except in 1881, when the average was nearly seven points lower and the average yield 18.6 bushels. The indication is now for a yield of a small fraction over 20 bushels per acre. The exact area, exclusive of that cut for fodder, as not worth harvesting, is not yet determined. Slight uncertainty regarding it may cause a variation in the final record of 1 or 2 per cent from 1,500,000 bushels.

The test of threshing has not materially enlarged the average rate of the whole yield, which appears to be about 11.8 bushels, or four-tenths of a bushel less than last year. The increase of acreage, which is large in Dakota, will make partial compensation and bring the product nearly or quite to 450,000,000 bushels. The rate of yield in New York is 16.7 bushels; Pennsylvania, 10.5; Ohio, 12.4; Michigan, 13.3; Illinois, 15.2; Wisconsin 10.3; Minnesota, 9.5; Iowa, 10; Missouri, 17; Kansas, 9.6; Nebraska, 10.7; Dakota, 10.5; California, 13.8; Indiana, 15.5.

OATS.

The yield of oats is slightly below an average, about 25 bushels per acre. The product is fully 600,000,000 bushels. In the principal States of the Central Valley region the State averages range from 25 to 30 bushels.

The barley yield is nearly 20 per cent. less than a medium yield, or about 20 bushels per acre. New York, 20.3; Michigan, 19.5; Wisconsin, 18.5; Minnesota, 19; Iowa, 19; California, 20.5.

The yield of rye is 11.5 bushels per acre and the product about twenty-four million bushels.

There has been a drop in condition of buckwheat, from 89 to nearly 77.

The condition of potatoes has declined from 67.3 to 61.5, partly from appearance of rot in the Atlantic States.

COTTON.

The condition of cotton has further declined. The effect of drouth in reducing vitality and arresting growth is more apparent than on the first of September. The general average has been reduced from 82.8 to 76.5. It is still several points higher than in 1883 and 1884, and ten points higher than in 1881. The average of condition by States is as follows: North Carolina, 78; South Carolina, 79; Georgia, 77; Florida, 79; Alabama, 76; Mississippi, 77; Louisiana, 78; Texas, 75; Arkansas, 75; Tennessee, 74.

The condition of tobacco averages 75.5 against 70.8. The figures for the States producing shipping and cutting leaf are: Maryland, 92; Virginia, 90; North Carolina, 91; Kentucky, 62; Ohio, 56; Indiana, 45; Illinois, 58; Missouri, 50; Tennessee, 57.

THE CIRCUIT COURT.

Opening of the Fall Term To-Day—Legal Notes—Suits Filed.

The fall term of the Circuit Court opened today, all the judges on the bench. The amount of business transacted, however, was very small.

Divorce Proceedings.

Rosa Lofland has asked for a divorce from Dorman D. Lofland and Judge Seddon will pass upon her petition. They were married in East Bend, N. C., March 3, 1878, and lived together until June 4, 1886, when on account of indignities suffered by the plaintiff at the defendant's hands she was forced to leave him. She alleges that the actions of her husband were so barbarous that in order to escape further indignities she at one time took an over-dose of laudanum with intent to end her own life. Her husband accused her of maintaining illicit correspondence with a man whose name is not given. This charge she denies. She alleges her husband is not now a resident of St. Louis, and an order of publication was granted.

Jennie Wengler's petition for divorce from John R. Wengler was filed to-day and assigned to Court-room No. 3 for hearing. She was married to John on December 14, 1881, and they lived together until July 16, 1886, when John deserted her. He has since remained absent, and has failed to contribute to her support.

Isabel Nelson was married to John C. Nelson January 9, 1874, in California, Mo. John abandoned her July 15, 1874, and has since failed to support her. Judge Barclay will pass on her petition for a divorce.

An order of publication was granted this morning in the suit of Louise Neal vs. Henry Neal for divorce, the ground of the suit being indignities and failure to support.

Wants His Share.

Jas. W. Evans has sued Albert G. Dunbar for $5,000. His petition filed in the Circuit Court this morning contains the following story: Dunbar was engaged in the business of buying and selling mines, and in February, this year, having charge of the Black Bird and Savage mines, located in Ouray County, California, to sell, he came to St. Louis to find a purchaser. Evans agreed to find a purchaser for 10 per cent of the price obtained. This Dunbar agreed to and Evans introduced him to Henry Hussman and others to whom the mines were sold for $50,000. Dunbar then neglected and refused to pay the commission, the collection of which Evans asks the Court to undertake.

Court Notes.

Robert Niebert was to-day appointed executor, without bond, of the estate of Gertrude Schneider, deceased, valued at $5,000. Mrs. Schneider's will devises $1,000 to each of her three sons and the remainder of her estate to her daughter.

The suit of the city vs. Daniel Davidson for $2,000 damages was tried to-day before Judge Lubke. In 1883 Davidson, who had a contract with the city to take the Work-house convicts and pay the city a certain sum per man, abandoned his contract. The city had at short notice to resume its control of the convicts, which caused a loss equal to the amount of damages claimed.

MAY VS. BRANDT.

THE M'DOWELL FAMILY SKELETON IN THE CIRCUIT COURT.

May A. McDowell or McClintock Asks for $50 per Month—Mr. McDowell Is in Paris, but His Attorney Says His Net Income is Only $900 per Year—A Continuance Wanted—The Lady and Her Friends in Court—Some Queer Allegations.

In Circuit Court-room No. 5 Judge Valliant called the case of May A. McDowell vs. Brandt McDowell to-day, a suit for maintenance. Harmon J. Bliss, who appeared for the defendant, asked a continuance. His client, he said, was in Paris, France, and though he had exercised due diligence in attempting to be present at the time of the trial he had failed to arrive.

Leander J. Smith, for the plaintiff said: "This is the shallowest excuse I have ever heard. Mr. Brandt McDowell is a gentleman of means and leisure. He saw fit to desert his wife last spring and go to France, where he has since remained. This case was filed in March and the defendant has had ample time to reach St. Louis, but out of mere perverseness he has refused to come. Judge Wickham is his agent, collects his rents and transmits the money to him that he may live in luxury in the city of Paris."

Judge Valliant said he would consider the motion if Mr. Bliss would reduce it to writing. Mr. Bliss then filed his own affidavit for continuance. He said:

BRANDT M'DOWELL'S SIDE.

Brandt McDowell did not know of the institution of the suit until informed by his own attorneys, and as he wished to be present personally at the trial his evidence which is material to his defense, was not taken. He is now in Paris, France, and is not absent through lack of diligence on his own part. "On account of the great length of time required for communications to pass between the defendant and his attorneys, and of the great distance which the defendant must travel in order to reach the city of St. Louis and of the great annoyance and expense which he must necessarily incur in said travel, and of the lack of funds therefor, said defendant has not been able to reach St. Louis in time for the trial." Funds have been sent him wherewith he may travel to St. Louis, and the affiant believes he will start on the receipt of the remittance, or has already started, and will be present at the beginning of the next term of court. The affiant "believes that the defendant will prove that the relations existing between plaintiff and defendant were illicit, and that the alleged marriage, if any such exists, was never validly and rightfully contracted, but was obtained though fraud, artifice and deceit of plaintiff."

THE FAIR PLAINTIFF.

The plaintiff, Mrs. May A. McDowell, nee McClintock, was in court, accompanied by her parents. She is 23 or 24 years of age, her hair and eyes are brown, the lashes of the eyes being long and the brows firmly marked. Her features are full and regular, of what has been called the Langtry type. Her beauty is undeniable, and it is not a peach-and-cream prettiness but ripe womanly beauty. The color in her cheek is fresh and warm. She wore a brown cloth dress tight fitting, high walking hat covered with the same goods and trimmed with large wings and brown velvet. She regarded every proceeding in the court with interest, and bore the scrutiny of the lawyers and others whose attention was attracted to her without the slightest trace of embarrassment. Nor was she brazen under the fire of eyes. Her self possession was like her beauty, womanly. In her suit for maintenance, which was filed soon after Mr. McDowell's departure, she claimed she was married to him in New York, August 24, 1886, and they lived together in St. Louis until February 23, 1887, when he abandoned her. She alleged that he was possessed of abundant means, and could well afford to maintain her. Mr. McDowell denied the marriage in his answer.

Judge Valliant asked to have the section of the statutes under which the suit was brought read to him. After hearing it he said: "The issues in this case are peculiar; it is not an ordinary case. The trial can be postponed without injury to either party. If the counsel can agree as to a suitable allowance to be made the plaintiff pending the trial, I will grant a continuance.

SHE WANTS $50 PER MONTH.

Mr. Smith thought $50 per month would be a proper sum.

Mr. Bliss said that was excessive. Mr. McDowell's gross income from rents, he said, amounts to $1,800 per year. On his property there are two trust deeds for $5,000 in the aggregate, the interest on which amounts to $300 per year. There are other current charges against the property, such as insurance and repairs, and Mr. McDowell has outstanding debts amounting to $1,200 at least. Pressed by Judge Valliant for the amount of Mr. McDowell's net income, Mr. Bliss said it did not amount to more than $900 per year. The Judge then said he would hear any proofs either side might wish to offer as to the amount of Mr. McDowell's estate, and would then determine the amount of the allowance. The case would be continued.

MR. M'DOWELL'S INCOME.

John Wickham, agent and attorney of Brandt McDowell, was put on the stand this afternoon to testify as to Mr. McDowell's financial condition. He said his client's net income was about $935 per year. Asked if Mr. McDowell had not lived on a scale very much greater than such an income would justify he admitted such was the case. The assessed value of his estate was but a few hundred over $16,000, and it was so encumbered that the real sum of his possessions was about $6,000. Mr. McDowell is in Paris, and cannot leave until he recieves money to pay his board bill.

R. L. McLaren of counsel for defendant asked if Mr. McDowell was not able to engage in business.

"He is not," said Mr. Wickham. "He is apparently strong, but suffers from an affection of the spine. His condition is such that a year or two ago it was proposed to have a guardian appointed for him, but his sister preferred to let him spend his money rather than subject him to such humiliation. He is not possessed of even average intelligence, I think. His grandmother, Mrs. Brandt, would be glad to have him live with her but he will not do so."

No further testimony was heard, and Judge Valliant said he would order $35 per month be paid to Mrs. McDowell during the time the suit was pending.

LABOR.

To-Day's Proceedings of the Knights of Labor General Assembly.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., October 10.—The Knights of Labor Assembly convened at the usual hour this morning, but little business of importance was handled, the time being consumed in hearing the reports and appointing committees. There was not a very full attendance, and the hotel lobbies swarmed with Knights. Among the majority of these there was an unmistakable feeling of satisfaction at the sentiments presented by Mr. Powderly in his report on the attitude of their order and the Catholic Church. The Associated Press representative talked with Knights of all religious denominations, and they were loud in their praise of Mr. Powderly's report and his personal attitude. Master Workman Lowry of District Assembly 111. Bradford, Pa., said: "Yes, I must confess there was considerable doubt with regard to Mr. Powderly's feelings, as well as some speculation as to what the sentiment of this report would be, but I am certain that every man in my district is satisfied this morning. There are not such a large number of Catholics in my district, and I am a Methodist, a denomination which to-day, I think, is more opposed to Catholicism than any other in existence. I think the religious beliefs have nothing to do with our order, and I am proud of Mr. Powderly, and refer with satisfaction to his remarks as to keeping up the dignity of the order. The remarks as to the attitude toward Anarchism also struck home, and to-day we stand, upon a well-defined and independent platform that every member understands."

John A. Hauer, M. W. of D. A. 128, comprising fourteen assemblies with headquarters at Springfield, O., is a pleasant gentleman of unassuming manners. He said: "There is some misgiving among certain members of our district as to what the result in question would be, but personally I never swerved for a moment in my belief that Mr. Powderly, although a devout Catholic, would do just as he has done. I am an English Lutheran, and there is a predominance of that denomination in my district. There has been much outside speculation with regard to religious sentiment embodying any portion of our platform, but now no one can believe that sectarianism ever had a mention in our constitution, and we stand on our personal dignity, and every member is free to believe and think as he pleases.

GAVE THE BABY AWAY.

A DRUNKEN FATHER'S FROLIC AND ITS LUDICROUS ENDING.

Tangled Up by Drink, a Man Gives His Child to a Stranger, Who Breaks Up His Family by Bringing It Home—In the Morning, He Tries to Return It, and Is Surprised at the Denouement—A Splendid Temperance Lecture.

Most amusing complications in some farce comedies often have their origin in the manner a baby is passed around, but the peculiar circumstances under which a baby came into the possession of a well-known switchman named Larry Doran, who resides on Second street, near Railroad street, in the First Ward of East St. Louis, on last Saturday evening, and the laughable scenes which ensued, beat anything produced on the stage. Saturday Doran attended the Fair. He spent the day on the grounds, and in the evening about 5 o'clock started for home, carrying with him a pleasant remembrance of his visit—also considerable beer. He took the Cass avenue cars, and when he reached Eighth and Carr streets he began to meditate upon the fact that it had been a long time between drinks, and came to the conclusion that he had better "wet up" again. He accordingly got off the car and walked down to Seventh street, where he found a saloon. While he was drinking a man who was a total stranger to him came in with a baby in his arm and began the relation of a pitiful tale of the supposed desertion of a wife who had been dearly beloved by him. He said that when he had returned to his home on Seventh street shortly before five o'clock he found both his wife and baby gone. At first he suspected nothing wrong, but when he had been informed by the next-door neighbors that his baby had been left at the house of a friend of his wife's, then it began to dawn on his mind that she

HAD LEFT HIM FOREVER.

His first thought was to get possession of the child, and he went to the house where his wife had left it for that purpose. Fearing that he would be prevented from taking it if he announced that he came to get it, he decided to obtain it surreptitiously. Entering stealthily by a rear door he discovered his infant lying in peaceful slumber on a bed, and snatching it up in his arms he fled. The inmates did not hear him and he had not been pursued. He had his own dear babe once more and he would like to see the person who would endeavor to tear it from him.

DORAN LISTENED ATTENTIVELY

to this tale of woe, and when the relator had finished ventured to ask him what he was going to do with the child now that he had it. The deserted man had not thought of that, and Doran's remark completely unnerved him. He looked at the infant, and probably a vision of himself, patrolling the bedroom with the babe, while the darling was doing his best to incite the neighbors to a riot, appeared to him, for after a few seconds of contemplation he burst into tears and said sorrowfully:

"Yes, it is better for us both to die. I will go the bridge and chance the woes of the hereafter rather than bear those I know so well."

He started to go, but Doran intercepted him. "What would you do?" he asked.

"Drown myself and the child also," said the deserted man.

"See here, man," said Doran, "You can go drown yourself if you want to, and I don't know but what it would be the best thing you could do, but if you attempt to harm that child you will have me to fight. Do you understand that?"

"Well, what would you have me do?" said the disconsolate father, "who could bear up under such a load as this?"

"Aint I bearing up pretty well under a bigger load than you have got," said Doran with a wink at the barkeeper. "Now if you don't want to act like a man and take care of that child just give it to me and I'll look after it myself."

This way out of his trouble suited the stranger immensely, and with a sigh of relief he placed the baby in Doran's arms so quickly that the latter was astonished. He looked very foolish for a few minutes, and was about to go back on his magnanimous offer, when the baby put its tiny hand on his cheek and tried to kiss him. That settled it. He was determined that the little bundle of humanity should be his, even if the father should desire it back. He started to go, informing the father that he would take the child to his home in East St. Louis. The father interposed no objection; in fact, seemed delighted with his success in relieving himself of the responsibility of having to care for it. Doran went up to Eighth street and again boarded a Cass avenue car, riding to Washington avenue, where he got off, and then walked across the bridge. When he reached his home on Second street, near Railroad street, it was about 7:30 o'clock. He opened the door and walked boldly in with the baby on his arm. His wife, who had been waiting supper for him for over an hour, and was in no amiable mood, caught sight of the infant reposing its head peacefully on his shoulder, and uttered a rather vehement exclamation of surprise. Doran proceeded to explain, and his good spouse, managed by a great effort to delay the oration which she had ready, until he had finished his tale. She then begun.

WHAT HIS WIFE SAID.

"Do you think that I am going to put up with this; that I will have that ugly-looking brat brought up with my own little darlings?" she said, after scoring him at length for his conduct. "No, I won't; and if you don't carry that youngster back to where it belongs at once, I will leave the house. That's all."

"All right, madam," said Doran, "you can do just as you please about that, "but I want you to distinctly understand that I am running this shanty, and I say this baby is going to remain here."

Mrs. Doran said no more, but took her own little child, about the same age as the little usurper, and left the house. She went to the residence of a neighbor, related her tale of misery and was taken in for the night. After she had left, Doran went to his bedroom, put the little tot which he had adopted under the covers, and then tumbled into bed himself. When he awoke Sunday morning he was considerably surprised for a while to find a strange child in bed with him, but a dim recollection of the happenings of the previous evening soon came back to him. He dressed himself and went out. The first person he met was his wife, and with a few well-chosen words she refreshed his memory as to the occurrences of the night before. He began to think the matter over and came to the conclusion that he had acted very foolishly. He would go and get the baby and return it to its father. But who was its father, and how would he find him? There was the trouble. He remembered that the barkeeper in St. Louis had spoken to the possessor of the baby as if he knew him. He would go and see the barkeeper and probably he would be able to tell him who the father was. So about noon he started over to St. Louis to look up the generous parent. He ascertained from the barkeeper where the man lived and went to his house. He found it locked up, but his knocking attracted some of the neighbors. They asked him whom he wanted to see. He told them and they then informed him that the man whom he was seeking had to hunt up a baby whom he had given away to a stranger while drunk. They related to him how their neighbor's wife, who had been out at the Fair all day, came home in the evening and found her baby gone and her husband drunk. When he had sobered off next morning the anxious wife had elicited from him that he had given their child to a stranger from East St. Louis, supposing that she had deserted him and not knowing what to do with the infant. Doran did not tell his informants who he was, and came back to this side of the river in the hope that he would run against the seekers for the lost baby. They, on their arrival here, went immediately to the police station for information, and the police having heard something about the case were able to direct them to the place where their child was. The mother was greatly distressed and characterized her husband as an unfeeling brute. He bore what she said meekly but did not seem at all worried. When the St. Louis couple arrived at the dwelling of the Dorans an animated scene ensued. Mrs. Doran, the distracted mother, the unfeeling father, and Doran himself had the principal speaking parts and the neighbors made up the rest of the cast. Some were in favor of hanging the man who had given the child away but the suggestion was not acted on and he and his wife escaped to St. Louis with their lost babe. Doran's wife has forgiven him and returned to her home, but his fellow-workmen have been badgering him relentlessly about his adopted child.

THE PRESIDENTIAL TRIP.

St. Paul's Preparations—The Start From Madison—A Stop at LaCrosse.

ST. PAUL, Minn., October 10.—The weather is fine this morning, and the preparations for the President's visit are quite complete, with the exception of the street decorations which are now rapidly going up. The system of street illumination has been greatly added to, and will be handsomer than ever before. Perhaps the most notable and unique feature of the reception will be the parade of the snowshoe and toboggan clubs, which will turn out about eighteen hundred gentlemen and ladies. The hotels are already filling up, and there is promise of the largest crowd ever seen in St. Paul. The President's train will arrive here at 5:30 p. m., and will be met by a reception committee and escorted to the Hotel Ryan, where Mayor Smith will deliver the address of welcome. The party will leave the hotel at 7:45, with a military escort, and will proceed to Bridge square, where the reviewing stand has been erected, from which they will review the procession. Mrs. Cleveland will be received by a committee of ladies. The general reception to the public will take place at the Ryan, from 9:30 until 11:30 p. m.

The Start.

MADISON, Wis., October 10.—Mrs. Cleveland and Mrs. Vilas took carriages at 8:30 o'clock this morning and drove to the railroad station. The President and Col. Vilas walked. The special train left for St. Paul at 9 o'clock. There were a few hundred people at the station to bid the city's guests a God speed, but there was no organized demonstration of any kind. The skies were bright, but the temperature is cold and the steam heaters of the train are in full blast.

Shrill Greetings.

LACROSSE, Wis., October 10.—The President's special train reached Lacrosse at 1 o'clock. A salute of twenty-one guns was fired as the train entered the station. A throng of people, numbering between six and eight thousand, awaited the arrival of the train and loudly cheered the visitors as they alighted and crossed the platform to the carriages. The steam whistles of the saw-mills and steamboats on the Mississippi screamed their loudest. The station and the principal buildings of the city were tastefully decked out with bunting. The party were escorted through the principal streets by the Governor's Guard. The Mayor and President of the Board of Trade accompanied the President in his carriage. The entire population, with a great number from a distance, were on the streets. The train stopped twenty minutes.

THE BIG WHEAT DEAL.

An Echo Sound in the Courts of Chicago To-Day.

CHICAGO, October 10.—An echo of the big wheat deal which excited Chicago Board of Trade men recently, is heard in Judge Garnett's court today. When the explosion consequent to the collapse of the corner came, it rent the firm of C. J. Kershaw & Co. A bill was then filed by Kershaw & Co., against Hamilton Dewar, Chas. B. Eggleston, Morris Rosenbaum and others for the appointment of a receiver for the limited partnership. To this Morris Rosenbaum, William R. Linn and others filed a cross-bill to have the special partnership declared general, and asking that the receiver be directed to take charge of the property of the individual members of the firm, and of the real estate which it was alleged to have been fradulently conveyed away by Charges B. Eggleston, which amounted to over $1,000,000 in value; the cross bill also charged that Eggleston was a general instead of a special partner. The cross-bill was directed against C. J. Kershaw, Hamilton Dewar, C. B. Eggleston, Charles E. Mosely, J. J. Mitchell, A. L. Dewar, Maggie B. Eggleston, Wm. Mason, James B. Mitchell and the American Exchange National Bank, and was made for Rosembaum Bros., Walker & Co., Wm. R. Linn, Blair & Co., Orr & Comes, Charles L. Raymond & Co, and several other creditors of the firm of Kershaw & Co., representing claims for over a million of dollars. To this cross-bill, Kershaw & Eggleston demurred, and this morning the arguments on the demurrer were commenced. This argument is of strict importance to the creditors, as the Court will be compelled to pass upon the question of whether Eggleston is a general partner, as charged in the cross-bill, and therefore liable for the debts of the firm.

THE TERRIBLE STORY TOLD BEFORE THE MAYOR THIS MORNING.

Arrest of Ida Bell by the Police at Midnight—Committed to the House of Refuge To-Day—Meetings of the Boards of Health and Public Improvements—Municipal Matters.

Alternately grinning and crying Ida Bell, a colored girl, was arraigned before Mayor Francis to-day on complaint of Police Officers Ziegler and Maguire. She is only 11 years of age and specially favored as a liar by an impediment in her speech, which always gives her an opportunity to formulate her story to suit the emergency, as his honor discovered this morning when he undertook to question her. The officers reported the girl as incorrigibly vicious, though only 11 years' old according to the best information they could obtain. The attention of the police was directed to the case by Mr. Morris, night clerk at the messenger office at No. 1116 Pine street. He informed the officers that for a long time he had noticed the little girl and a companion apparently still younger, loafing about the vicinity of the office at unseasonable hours of the night. Last night Officer Ziegler made an investigation and learned that the child was in the habit of making midnight appointments with the messenger boys employed at this office The officers began their watch at midnight, and about 12:20 o'clock discovered the girl and a companion about her own age in the back yard of the above number. The officers hurried in and arrested Ida; her companion, whose name is Patterson, escaped in the darkness. Ida was taken to the Four Courts and locked up. She refused to reveal anything about the girl who was in her company at the time. She said that she had hired out as a scrubber in the vicinity of the telegraph office and admitted that she frequently went there to meet the boys, from whom she received money. She said she lived with Lucy Jones, at 1617 Wash st., as her father was dead. After hearing the official statement of the case Mayor Francis committed the girl to the House of Refuge. As she withdrew in charge of the officer she expressed herself rather inelegantly of the Mayor and police officers.

The Bodemann Pond.

At the meeting of the Board of Health, held this afternoon, several applications for admission to the Insane Asylum were passed upon. The case of the Bodemann Park pond has been deferred until November. Mr. Bodemann is now in Europe and will return about November. His daughter, who appeared before the Board, agreed to have the cows removed from the pasture, which drains into the pond, and to see that the ice cut from the pond is not used for any other than storage purposes.

Public Improvements.

The Board of Public Improvements met at noon to-day to elect a temporary president. Col. Flad is away on a leave of absence. Sewer Commissioner McMath has been directing the sessions of the Board, but it is probable that he and Commissioner Murphy will be absent a few days this week. State Commissioner Turner was not present and a recess was taken until late this afternoon when the reorganization will be effected. Park Commissioner Klemm submitted a plan for replacing the wooden bridge over the River des Peres, near the pump-house in Forest Park with an iron structure. The plans were referred to a committee. Late this afternoon the Board will have another session.

Municipal Matters.

The street-railway reports to the Register were due October 1.

The Southern Railway Company filed its report for the quarter ending September 30. During that period 44,553 trips were made and 670,832 passengers were carried.

The General Committee of Arrangements for the reception of President Cleveland met at the Mayor's office at 4 p. m. to close the business. A congratulatory spirit pervaded the room. All were well pleased with the success of the Presidential entertainment.

RANDALL AT ATLANTA.

The Pennsylvania Congressman Gets a Warm, Southern Welcome.

By Telegraph to the POST-DISPATCH.

ATLANTA, Ga., October 10.—Ex-Speaker Randall was met at the depot yesterday by quite a gathering of local magnates. He found awaiting him Editor Henry W. Grady, United States Judge Newman and others, who warmly welcomed him and escorted him to the Kimball House, where an impromptu levee was held. An amusing feature of the reception was the discovery, at the last minute, that the reception committee was somewhat on the "dry" order, and as Mr. Randall was coming in from a long and tiresome ride it was necessary to provide refreshments such as "dry men don't indulge in." In conversation with Mr. Randall, he spoke with enthusiasm of the evidences of progress which greeted him on his way through the South.

"Your progress is phenomenal," he said, "and the possibilities for the future are as boundless as your development of the last few years has been remarkable."

To-day Mr. Randall will be breakfasted at the Kimball by the officers of the Piedmont Fair Association, and at 1 p. m. will formally open the fair. To one gentleman who called on him Mr. Randall said:

"The South is now experiencing for the first time the wonderful impetus which manufactures give to business. To stop these manufacturing enterprises would be disastrous, especially to the South, in that it would destroy your infant industries and under the depression it caused there would be no telling when the revival would come."

Mr. Randall is being overwhelmed with social attentions.

MISS ETHEL SPRAGUE.

Rumors That the Young Lady Will Adopt the Stage.

By Telegraph to the POST-DISPATCH.

WASHINGTON, D. C., October 10.—Social circles here are surprised by the announcement that Miss Ethel Sprague, the daughter of Mrs. Kate Chase Sprague, and the granddaughter of the late Chief Justice Salmon P. Chase, is preparing for her debut of the theatrical stage. Miss Sprague, it is said, possesses remarkable histronic talent, and for some time past has been under the instruction of the eminent masters of the European and American stages.

The Body Found.

The body of a woman supposed to be Mary Weiss, who was drowned on the 3d inst., by the upsetting of a skiff in which she and four men named John Morrison, Henry Leitner, Wm. Schureman and John Singen were seated, was found to-day at East Carondelet by Andrew Gansner. Morrison, Leitner and Schureman are under arrest, and warrants for culpable negligence were issued against them by Assistant-Prosecuting Attorney Dierkes to-day. The inquest on the body will be held this evening.

A Fatal Explosion.

PITTSBURG, Pa., October 10.—Louis Sorocco, an Italian, was instantly killed this afternoon by the explosion of a soda fountain. He was employed at Louis Celia's soda-water manufactory on Grand street, and was engaged in charging the fountain with gas when the explosion occurred. Celia was standing beside him and was knocked down, but not seriously injured. The building, a one-story structure, was badly damaged.

Grand Jury.

The following Grand-jury was impaneled in the Criminal Court this morning for the October term: James M. Carpenter, foreman; Julius Conrad, James Milburn, James H. Hoyswell, Thomas P. Moore, N. O. Nelson, F. A. Drew, Robert Aull, John Quan, Henry Blattner, Joseph Epstein and Clark H. Sampson.

WASHINGTON NEWS.

The United States Supreme Court Convenes—No Business Transacted.

WASHINGTON, D. C., October 10.—The United States Supreme Court convened to-day for the October term of 1887. There was a full bench with the exception of the vacancy left by the death of Justice Woods. Without transacting any business other than action upon motions for admission to the bar, the court adjourned until to-morrow, when the regular call of the docket will begin. An adjourned meeting of the bar of the United States Supreme Court was held in the court-room this afternoon to take suitable action with reference to the death of Justice Woods. The committee appointed at the previous meeting in May last reported a series of resolutions, which were adopted, and eulogies were pronounced by Assistant Attorney-General Maurey, and others. The action of the members of the bar and the resolutions adopted will probably be reported to the court to-morrow.

Cabinet Changes.

By Telegraph to the POST-DISPATCH.

WASHINGTON, D. C., October 10.—There is great interest manifested here in the Southern portion of the President's tour. It is stated that he has postponed naming the new Justice of the Supreme Court until he has looked over the South. There are many here who think Secretary Lamar is fixing up his affairs at the Interior Department so as to be ready to leave the Cabinet at any time for the bench. With this end in view Assistant Secretary Muldrow is posing as a candidate for the vacant place in the Cabinet. Mr. Muldrow has hopes of getting it on the civil service principle and points to the elevation of Secretary Fairchild as his precedent. The friends of Senator Colquitt of Atlanta, Ga., are pressing him forward as the most available man for the Cabinet place, and as his term expires in 1889 they say he would not be averse to accepting the place. It is hoped by the Senator's friends that when Cleveland reaches Atlanta they will be able to show him why Colquitt should be taken into the Cabinet. The President (report says) is very nervous in regard to this part of the trip. It is said that he has entirely revised one or two of his addresses for the South.

MAXWELL'S CASE.

Mr. Fauntleroy Goes to Washington in His Client's Interest.

H. W. Fauntleroy, attorney for Maxwell, left here for Washington, D. C., last Saturday evening. He went on for the purpose of filing the transcript of the case in the United States Supreme Court, and having the case docketed. This morning, on motion of Assistant Attorney-General Maury, he was admitted to the bar of the court and transacted his business. With the docketing of the case the work of Messrs. Martin & Fauntleroy is done in the matter for the present. State's Attorney General Boone will no doubt file a motion to dismiss the case on the ground of jurisdiction. This will then bring up the question as to whether the United States Supreme Court has jurisdiction in cases where the alleged errors are made by the trial court, and where no State law is alleged to be in conflict with the National Constitution. If the court holds it has jurisdiction the case will not be reached for three years, unless the State is successful in securing its advancement on the docket.

IMPORTANT LETTERS DISCOVERED IN THE HOUSE OF MME. LIMONSIN.

Military Papers Obtained and Translated for Germany—Gen. Ferron's Speech—The Fishery Dispute—Death of Maurice Strakosch—The Bulgarian Elections—Meetings of Suppressed Branches of the National League—Trouble in India—Foreign News.

PARIS, October 10.—In the house of Mme. Limonsin, who has been arrested in connection with the Caffarel case, there was discovered about three hundred letters to M. Wilson and others from M. Herbette, Gen. Thibaudin and Gen. Boulanger. It is believed that if the Government had known the extent of the scandal, Gen. Caffarel would not have been arrested. Baron Kreitmayer, the German implicated in the affair, was ostensibly a horse-dealer. It is suspected that he and Mme. Limonsin obtained and translated military papers for Germany.

GEN. FERRON'S SPEECH.

Gen. Ferron, Minister of War, opened the Lycee at Chartres yesterday. He delivered an address in which he said that the manufacture of the new rifles for the army was being carried on with undiminished vigor. He referred to the Caffarel affair and said: "You need not anticipate from me the slightest weakness in dealing with faults against honor and discipline. The higher the military position of the guilty parties the more severely I shall deal with them. The errors of one man do not stain the honor of the whole army. Keep intact the consideration and esteem in which you hold it."

MAURICE STRAKOSCH DEAD.

The First Manager and Brother-in-Law of Patti Passes Away.

Special Cablegram to the Post-Dispatch.

PARIS, October 10.—It is with deep regret that I report the death of the famous impresario, Maurice Strakosch. He was known quite as widely in England and in the United States as in Paris, and wherever he was known he was liked. His long experience of life in every quarter of the globe had given him a rare fund of anecdote, and his conversation was set off by an originality of expression which gave it a peculiar zest. Moravian by birth, he had remarkable facility for acquiring languages, but, with the exception of Italian, which he had learned with care, he spoke them all with strong accent. Maurice Strakosch had an eventful career. He was first destined for the operatic stage and he studied for some time under the direction of Pasta, who has already retired from public life. Seeing, however, but little chance of distinction as a singer, he turned his attention to the piano and became a virtuoso of mark, playing with success in the chief capitals of the world. When in America he married Amelia Patti, who possessed one of the finest contralto voices of her day. I have often heard Adelina declare that her sister Amelia had the most splendid contralto she had ever heard, and even if we were to make allowance for sisterly partiality, for which there is no need, we should still be inclined to believe that Mme. Nicolini was not far from the truth, in such noble style does Mme. Strakosch still sing. It was under Maurice Strakosch's auspices that Adelina Patti, after having made a marked success in the United States, first appeared in Europe at the Covent Garden Theater and she went through the Continent with him until her marriage with the Marquis de Caux. I have just heard from a member of the family that M. Strakosch passed away quietly at midnight last night. He had been suffering from asthma of late and had a somewhat sharp attack at the beginning of June last, but he rallied quickly on that occasion and his sudden end was so little expected that he actually gave three lessons to pupils yesterday. When he fell back last night his wife thought that he had fainted and could not at first believe that life was extinct. The funeral is to take place to-morrow at Peae la Chaise.

England.

THE FISHERY DISPUTE.

LONDON, October 10.—The Post, commenting on the fisheries dispute, says: "The main contention of the Americans is that no nation has the right of jurisdiction over the sea beyond a three-mile limit. On the Pacific, America is acting in flat contradiction to any such principle of inter-state comity or treaty rights. British vessels have been arrested far outside of the limit, and their captains fined and crews imprisoned. In some cases the vessels and cargoes have been forfeited. America's Pacific claims form an excellent counter argument to America's Atlantic claims, and as such will be of great and direct value to Mr. Chamberlain."

In the case of the Pacific seizures by the United States authorities, the Morning Post further says it remains a vital fault that they occurred where the telegraph and newspapers are not known, as the local officials can thus provide an unchecked account of their proceedings. Mr. Chamberlain, it says, in the absence of information from independent sources, is helpless to contend against American evidence, and it urges Lord Salisbury to collect evidence lest Mr. Chamberlain be hampered in the negotiations.

MEETINGS OF SUPPRESSED BRANCHES.

DUBLIN, October 10.—Several of the suppressed branches of the League in County Cork held meetings yesterday without the knowledge of the police. At a meeting at Maccroom there were constables present, but they did not interfere. Several secret meetings were held in the Mitchellstown District. At Ballygiblin, a meeting was held in open defiance of the law, and Father Sexton, in a speech, defied the Government to intimidate people in honest and open combination.

MGR. PERSICO'S SERMON.

Mgr. Persico, the Papal delegate to Ireland, in a sermon delivered in this city yesterday, said that he was gratified at the devotion of the Irish to the Pope. Their devotion was manifest throughout all Ireland, even including Ulster. He stated that he was grieved at the poverty which existed in the West of Ireland, but rejoiced that in other parts of the country such an unhappy state of affairs did not exist.

A SEDITIOUS LETTER.

CALCUTTA, October 10.—Dhuleep Singh has written a seditious letter to the native papers, in which he says that England has offered him $250,000 in settlement of his claim against the Government on condition that he would not go to India. He rejected the offer. His arrest at Aden, he says, converted his loyalty to bitter hatred of England, and he has solemnly resolved to devote his life to freeing his country from the British yoke. He declares that he will serve his new sovereign, the Czar, with his life's blood. It is expected that the letter will induce the journals published in the Indian vernacular to attack British rule.

REV. WANGDOODLE ON FRIENDSHIP.

A Cynical Discourse by the Pastor of the Blue Light Tabernacle.

From Texas Siftings.

De subject ob dis ebenin's discourse am friendship.

De genuine article am becoming skurser and skurser ebery year. As a gineral ding de freu indeed am de fren in need, and de fust ding yer knows he strikes yer for a quarter.

Ef yer has a fren and yer wants ter keep him, yer must nebber ask him ter befren yer at his own expense. Ef yer has disagreeable frens, yer mus treat 'em as yer does yer corns. Cutting 'em am de only remedy.

I onct had a dear fren, a member ob dis congregashun. He borrowed $20, and he hasn't paid hit back yit. Dat busted our frenship, and hit has nebber been de same sence. A broken frenship may be soldered up, but hit will allers show de cracks. In de words ob Brer Opie Read, ob de Arkensaw Trabeller, yer kin impose on yer enemy and he won't think much about it, but when yer imposes on a dear fren he's dun wid yer fer life.

Perhaps you has noticed dat a man allers quarrels wid his frens. He don't hab no fuss ter speak ob wid his enemies. He don't haf nuffin ter do wid 'em, but he am sure to hab a row wid some deah, deah fren.

I knowed a man who nebber went back on a fren, bekase he nebber had one. He tole me dat de only fren who stuck ter him in prosperity and adversity was—a bottle of mucilage.

Ef yer wants help, nebber go to your relashuns. You may forgit yer pore relashuns, but yer can count on yer pore relations nebber forgittin you, onless it be for gittin yer in dar debt. Heah! heah! heah! Wid money comes pore relashuns, but pore relations never come wid money. Dat's one ob de rules dat don't work bofe ways. Selah!

Ef yer beleeves yer has a fren, ef yer wants to keep him, don't be too candid wid him. I has knowed men who was always more candid in der talk wid frens dan dey was wid der enemies.

In regard ter enemies, de good book says yer mus' lub 'em. I onct had an enemy libbin next door ter me, and I lubbed him so much dat I gub his little boy a drum. Heah! heah! heah!

Ef yer has an enemy—and eberybody has lots ob 'em—don't try ter injure him. Dat's barbarous; but if yer wants to make him sick yer mus' be successful in some undertakin' whar he has perdicted yer would fail.

A GLORY HOLE SERVICE.

London's Don Quixote of Journalism Describes a Salvation Army Meeting.

Editor Stead in the Pall Mall Gazette.

The place of worship at Brighton known as the "Glory Hole" was formerly called the Assembly Hall, but since it has come into the possession of the "Army of the Lord" it has been designated "The Sanctuary of Jehovah." The exterior is painted red, and the interior of the walls and ceilings are heavily decorated with red cloth and flags of all nations. These decorations and ornamentation are not the outcome of some fancy or whim of those who are interested in the work, but have been carried out, it is alleged, in consequence of direct commands received through one or more of the prophets who have been called out of the world to form part of the bride of Christ, and to preach a full salvation of spirit, soul and body. The "Sanctuary" is divided by a strong iron fence, six feet high, into two portions, the outer being allotted to the general public, or such of them as are admitted, and the inner to those whose sins have been pardoned. In the latter court the saved sinners are seated in tiers according to the state of holiness they have attained. On the platform dividing the main body of the hall from the "holy of holies" sit, stand, dance, lie or kneel, according to circumstances, certain prophets and prophetesses, while beneath the platform is the "Glory Hole," the name by which the hall has lately been made known to the world by means of the Police Court. The Army claim to have a direct commission from the Almighty to preach, to prophesy, to heal, to baptize and to use all the gifts be-stowed upon the Apostles on the Day of Pentecost.

When service is about to commence one or two of the brothers are stationed at the gate. One at least must be a "discerner of spirits," and as you make your way towards the entrance he looks intently into your eyes and decides whether you may enter or not. If you are refused no words of persuasion will prevail. The discerner having given me permission to enter the building, I made straight for a front seat, but just as I was passing through the gate in the fence already mentioned, a hand was placed on my shoulder, and I was asked: "Are you sure all your sins are pardoned?" As I could not give a definite answer to the question, I was told to sit in the outer court. This, of course, I did without hesitation, but I soon observed, by the merry twinkle in the eyes of some who were thus interrogated, and who answered in the affirmative, that a little deception was going on. Service commenced with prayer. The brothers and sisters all prayed aloud, simultaneously, and each in his or her own words. The result can be imagined—a veritable Babel. It should here be stated that the members of the army are dressed in various ways—the men mostly wear red jerseys, black trousers and red boots; while the sisters dress in different styles, some with bonnets, some with hats, and some with neither; some have sashes, which denote the possession of certain spiritual gifts.

The meeting is left to "the guidance of the Holy Spirit," and it is generally at this part of the service that a scene or two occurs. When, perhaps, one of the brothers is giving out a hymn, a shriek is heard, and in an instant a girl is seen dancing, or rather hopping, down the sanctuary. Sometimes two or three start at once, and as they are moving along, perhaps with a rush like a madman, or maybe leisurely, and now and then bundling against the wall, a voice is heard from the platform, "Mockers, scoffers, beware! beware! This is the sanctuary of the Lord, and if you do not go out he will pick you out. Beware!" In the meantime probably the dancing girl is standing over one of the congregation, who has hardly taken his seat, and exclaims: "This man has brought a devil in with him; the Lord says he is to go out this instant!" On one occasion a gentleman dressed in clerical garb was "made for" by one of the prophetesses. Previously, however, a brother said the Lord told him there was a spy present. She stood by our clerical friend, shouting with the full force of her lungs: "You are a a spy; you must go out; go out at once, I say!" Immediately he was surrounded by five or six strong looking men, who hustling him outside.

I was present at a celebration of the Lord's Supper. They use unleavened bread and pure water, believing that the wine cup, as used in orthodox and other churches, is the "cup of devils," spoken of in the Book of Revelation. After prayer and silence, the usual rapping of toes on the floor which precedes a performance, one of the girls commenced to dance, and a few minutes later on she began to laugh. "What do you see, sister?" asked one. "I see what you can't," was the reply. "I see the Lord walking around the table with the angel Gabriel." A dead silence reigned for a few minutes, during which the girl repeated what she was supposed to be told by the Lord Himself while in this ecstatic state.

One night, just after service had commenced, I overheard two gentlemen talking about mesmerism, and I inquired which of the brothers was supposed to be the mesmerist. We were all speaking, so that none but ourselves could hear; and I was being answered when a voice exclaimed, "There is somebody here who says this is mesmerism." Whereupon one of the dancing girls made her way rapidly down the side of the building and finally picked out one of the two I had the moment before been speaking with. He was surrounded in the usual way and ordered to leave the building, which, of course, he was obliged to do. Women are turned out in the same manner and language used toward them that would not be tolerated for a moment from ordinary people or under ordinary circumstances. I must not omit to mention, when under the power of the spirit some of the prophets are supposed to speak in unknown tongues, and certainly the idiotic noises they make disclose the fact that the meaning of what they say is as much unknown to themselves as it is to those who look on. They sing with much heartiness such hymns as "The Devil's Mad, and I am Glad; Glory, Hallelujah!" Whilst singing they wave their handkerchiefs, clap their hands, stamp their feet. Generally it is the girls who do the dancing, but occasionally the men take a turn, men of the age of 40 or 50, while many sit and shake as though afflicted with the palsy.

ROYAL IRISH CONSTABULARY.

The Military Rule That Supplants Home Rule in Ireland.

Mitchellstown Correspondence of the London News

The name "Irish Constable" misleads five in every ten English readers, and as sometimes there is, for the purpose of having one's ideas set right, nothing like a good, sound shock, so whoever wishes to see at a glance what the Government of Ireland is, he can do no better than come for a day's first-hand study of the R. I. C. With nothing to guide him but his preconceived notions derived from his knowledge "of the force" at home, he may read the contemporary history of Ireland, or at any rate the most suggestive chapter of it, in what he sees of the Royal Irish Constabulary from the windows of his railway carriage as he stops at stations, or while he traverses the country roads by night or by day.

At every railway station, even the pettiest of them, there are men in dark uniforms with helmets or dark soldier-like forage caps. They are armed with rifles. If you are new to the country you are pretty sure to take them for military people, volunteers at any rate; but as they are the "R. I. C." they scrutinize sharply whomsoever they suppose to be a stranger. They "take stock" of him as sentries would of a suspicious-looking character on the Franco-German frontier. If he is driving at night along a country road, say between Ennis and Bodyke, or in any other part of Clare, Limerick, or Tipperary, or Cork—where the National League has not only been proclaimed but also suppressed—he may be asked to pull up and give his name, his whence and his whither. A muffled figure on horseback emerges slowly at a walking pace from the trees as you approach. He stands stock still, like a statue; it is a mounted man of the R. I. C.

The foot constables—gendarmes, to give them their proper name—patrol in couples and draw themselves up, one on each side of the road, as the traveler passes. You arrive at some village where there is a constabulary barrack. The village is asleep—not a dog barks, not a mouse stirs; but in an instant you hear the rattling and jingling of bivouacking troops jumping to their feet. It is the R. I. C.

When the Royal Irish "Gendarme" is off duty, or when he is not at drill—military drill, mind you, as much as if he had taken the Queen's shilling—he lounges about the hotel bars, imbibing whisky or sucking the end of his cane. But I must explain here that it is not in every hotel, even in large towns, that the waiter, man or woman, will consent to serve the R. I. C. In Mitchellstown there is not one waiter or master who would do it, or, at least, only one or two. I have said "off duty," but a lounger, in his smart, military-looking tunic, and with the tiny forage cap jauntily tilted over the sedulously trained and carefully exposed curls, may really be engaged upon another duy, taking notes whilst he sucks the end of his stick.

Two or three nights ago, in Cork, he was detected in the act of watching the home rule Union members through the windows of their hotel, and an angry altercation between him and Mr. Brunner's party was the result. The Royal Irish Constabulary may also be compared to Proteus, for he assumes diverse garbs, so that his mother would not know him. I have had the honor of making the acquaintance of perhaps the greatest master of the art of disguise which even the Royal Irish Constabulary boasts of. In the city of Cork there are no fewer than thirty Royal Irish Constables who are always on the prowl in civilian garb, acting as spies—so I am told by the chief magistrate himself (Mr. O'Brien), to whom I have just paid a visit in his own beautiful town for the purpose of getting some additional details to those which I have gathered about the R. I. C. during the past three weeks.

A constitutionally-minded Briton, say from an English provincial town, would be horrified to hear his worship's loud laugh at the notion that the police in Cork—I beg your pardon, I mean R. I. C.'s—do police work, or that he himself, the chief magistrate of the city, can exercise any control over them, or count upon them to do anything except to break heads. In the city of London or in Manchester, a Chief Magistrate defied by his own "bobbies" would be a curiosity. In Cork the Mayor is not its Chief Magistrate, but Plunkett Pacha. The Government of Ireland is not as the Government of England or of Scotland. It is a Government of Pachas; and as in Turkey the humane Pachas are recalled to Stamboul as soon as they show symptoms of humane feeling, so we see men like Sir Redvers Buller recalled to Dublin, and replaced in these parts of Ireland by Pachas of sterner mold.

This telegraphic service filled THIRTY-FIVE COLUMNS of the paper.

THE SUNDAY POST-DISPATCH was first yesterday, and there was no second.

THE Henry George movement has been strengthened by the active opposition of DENNIS KEARNEY.

THE Hendricks Association and the Iroquois Club no longer deliberate around the same council-fire.

THE President has been fishing in Wisconsin. His luck cannot be announced till the next election.

CHICAGO should inaugurate a great popular movement for the recovery of MIKE KELLY. The crisis demands it.

FORAKER'S friends pronounce him "a finished speaker." After awhile he may be more completely "finished" than he is now.

A TRAIN of cars containing Gov. FORAKER was recently thrown off the track and badly smashed. It is not stated who is responsible for this snub.

THE widest chasm now offered to view in the field of politics is the one which yawns between Mr. TERENCE POWDERLY and Mr. HENRY GEORGE.

A WELL-KNOWN firm of Kentucky distillers has failed on account of the present sluggishness in the whisky market. Disasters like this could be prevented by holding elections oftener.

THE German-American Citizens' Association of New York has indorsed the Democratic State ticket. This is probably one result of Republican coquetting with the Prohibition movement.

PERHAPS Newport society would object to any serious attempt to reform the House of Lords. Many people would regret to have their lordships lose the rich, gamy flavor which now distinguishes them.

IN the question between bossism and reform in Maryland politics our esteemed contemporary, the Republican, arrays itself on the side of the bosses. This is one of the penalties of being a Democratic "organ."

THE brilliant clubbing talent of the New York police force has just been brutally exhibited in dispersing a Progressive Labor meeting. No man is fit to be a policeman who doesn't know the proper use of a club.

THE Rochester Post-Express says that SAM SMALL proposes to convert a member of Congress. SAM might obtain some valuable hints about the practical part of such a contract by consulting Messrs. STANFORD and HUNTINGTON.

THE friends of the condemned Anarchists would accomplish more by trying to save the Anarchists who have not yet been tried and convicted. Let those lawless people be taught to obey the laws, and many future hangings may be averted.

BEFORE the appearance of the SUNDAY POST-DISPATCH the Sunday readers of St. Louis papers had no choice except between the blind and bigoted Republicanism of the Globe-Democrat and the equally unreasoning partisan Democracy of the Republican. An independent paper, Democratic in politics and impartial in its treatment of public questions was badly needed, and its appearance is appreciated.

THE SECOND SUCCESS.

The first issue of the SUNDAY POST-DISPATCH on October 2 was an instantaneous and acknowledged success. It contained twenty pages of seven columns, or 140 columns, of which 75 columns were filled with advertisements and 65 columns with news and editorial reading matter.

Yesterday's POST-DISPATCH is superior to its predecessor in every way, and came much nearer to realizing our ideal of a Sunday morning paper. It consisted of twenty-four pages, or 168 columns. Fifty-two columns were filled with advertising, while our readers had 116 columns of fresh, newsy, specially prepared and varied reading with which to fill the leisure of Sunday.

Our cable news was full and complete and covered all the leading events of Europe. In local matters we distanced both of our esteemed competitors, our press reports covered all the domestic telegraphic news. All the matter in the paper was better prepared and better placed than in either of the other papers, and in beauty of typographic appearance the SUNDAY POST-DISPATCH is by far the handsomest paper in the city.

To specialize the features which made up this admirable issue, we may mention among our special contributors the well-known names of "Bill Nye," "Nym Crinkle," HENRY GUY CARLETON, "Rigolo," the Baroness ALTHEA SALVADOR, WONG CHIN FOO, S. S. CHAMBERLAIN, LUCY HAMILTON HOOPER, Mrs. R. P. PORTER and "MAGOOGIN."

Items not to be found in other papers were the Nelly Bly story in New York, the Bell County Feud in Kentucky, the account of the Joplin Mining Boom, and locally, the Consolidation of the Granite and Bi-Metallic Mines, the Exchange Chat, the Stars of Gilmore's Band, the Iroquois Club's Spree, the Loyal Legion Meeting, and other articles of note and interest.

Finally, there was received by telegraph in the POST-DISPATCH office between the hours of going to press with the Saturday paper and the Sunday morning paper a total of 53,309 words of telegraph from all sources.

A MILLIONAIRE'S IDEAS.

Mr. DAVID SINTON, a Cincinnati millionaire, tells the public through an interviewer that he is not a believer in universal suffrage. He says:

> I pay probably more taxes than any other man in the city, but my vote is no better than that of any loafer or thief. In industrial corporations men vote according to the interest they hold. The City Government is a corporation—the United States Government is a corporation—yet, no matter how much a man's interest may be in the municipality or country, his vote counts no more than that of the newly arrived immigrant, who has nothing at stake. Such a system seems absurd.

Mr. SINTON'S idea is that our cities and our country would be more wisely governed and their affairs more honestly administered if the voting power of each individual were limited in strict proportion to his possessions, as it is in private corporations, where a stockholder has one vote or a thousand, according to the number of shares he owns in the property. The system which bases suffrage upon manhood instead of wealth, and upon humanity instead of property—which gives the same means of political protection to the poor man as to the rich man, and thus enables the masses to outvote the millionaires—seems absurd to a great many of the latter.

But admitting all the imperfections, blunders in policy, betrayals of trust or other faults that can be charged to government by universal suffrage in this country, where on earth can Mr. SINTON show better results from government according to his plan? How was it with Venice governed by an oligarchy of her "merchant princes?" Where has a government of landlords or wealthy nobles produced better results than government by the people in this country? In what country does property suffrage secure better protection for property rights than universal suffrage affords in this country?

As for the results of corporation government based on votes according to shares in this country, the whole story of it is a record of mismanagement and breaches of trust, and the worst-wronged and worst-swindled voters in this country, as a class, are those who have paid for the privilege of voting shares in corporation elections controlled by stock-manipulating combinations of corporation wreckers.

THE cause of Irish Home Rule is too strong and buoyant to be held down by an adverse majority in the House of Commons. The strained situation in Ireland necessitates a radical change of some kind, and such a change can hardly fail to be something in the nature of Tory concession to Irish demands. To attempt greater stringency in the enforcement of the present Government policy would be to invite defeat and discomfiture. The Tory leaders have enough sagacity to perceive that they have inaugurated a policy which cannot be carried out.

A NEW YORK paper announces that a Boston dry goods house is going to bring out a new novel by ROBERT GRANT. The literary atmosphere of the "Hub" permeates all the nooks and crevices of the place. The time may soon come when the Boston breweries will do a small publishing business in an amateurish way.

ONE witness testified before a Committee of the New Hampshire Legislature that in a State election he bought twenty Republican votes for $15 apiece. BILL CHANDLER can point with pride to the fact that in his State a vote cannot be bought for a drink of whisky or a free lunch.

THE first game of the base ball championship series between St. Louis and Detroit will be played to-day. May the best club win. The championship race between the SUNDAY POST-DISPATCH and the other Sunday papers was yesterday decided in favor of the POST-DISPATCH.

The Pension Grabber.

I served the boys with fish and lard,
I tramped through bog and fen;
I soldiered through the poultry-yard
And yanked the setting hen.
I bear the marks of tanglefoot,
Uncorked along the line,
And scars which once a mad mule put
Beside my lower spine.

I want a better pension bill,
To cut the surplus off;
A freer flow of slush and swill,
A bigger public trough.
Then, forward, boys! there linger still
The golden days of "swag;"
So hurrah for the pension bill
And hurrah for the flag!

Marching On.

From the New York WORLD.

In 1856 the share capital of the present Western Union was $500,000. In May, 1864, it was over $20,000,000. In July, 1869, it had swelled to more than $41,000,000. In January, 1881, on its amalgamation with the American Union and Atlantic & Pacific lines, the flood-gates were opened and the stock was watered up to $80,000,000. This last purchase raises the share capital to $85,000,000.

The sole remaining opposition telegraph lines are now those of the United and Postal Companies, which cover all Eastern points as far as Omaha and Kansas City, except New Orleans, and reach the Pacific coast through their contract with the Canadian Pacific lines.

Thus Monopoly marches on. Despite popular indignation, railroads, telegraphs, telephones, oil companies, coal companies, gas companies and other gigantic enterprises swallow up small rivals and become bloated with wealth and power. The giant seems to grow bolder and more arrogant in the face of opposition. The feeble utterances of Democratic Conventions only encourage him to renewed exertions for supremacy, and make him more insolent and defiant than ever in the face of investigation. The only power that is now left to oppose monopoly is the press, and unfortunately there is reason to believe that some newspapers are in the enemy's camp, instead of on the side of the people.

What Is Gorman's Grip?

From the New York Evening Post, Adm. Organ.

For some reason or other, which nobody that we have heard of has ever been able to give, all attempts to bring home to the President's mind the exact nature and operation of Senator Gorman's machinery in Baltimore have proved ineffectual. The facts have been laid before him more than once by members of the Reform League, including Mr. Cowen, but without making any apparent impression. Higgins still holds his own, and so does Rasin, and so does Thomas, and so do others of the gang, who carry into their operations the authority and weight and immunity derived from the holding of Federal offices. Apparently the reformers have not been able to satisfy the President that the account Senator Gorman has probably given of them, that they are a small knot of cranks or malcontents who are dissatisfied because they get none of the patronage themselves, is untrue. At all events, he pays no attention to their groans, and receives their remonstrances in more or less impressive silence.

Chicago's Fame in Texas.

From the Dallas (Tex.) News.

They mean business in Chicago. They have not only convicted several "boodlers," but have actually made others return their ill-gotten gains. There is an official or two in Chicago who is worthy of being elected to any office within the gift of the people.

IT is said in Washington that Thomas C. Manning, United States Minister to Mexico, has sent his resignation to the State Department and that it will soon be accepted.

IRVING BROWNE, editor of the Albany Law Journal, objects to Senator Ingalls' assertion that a gentleman should shave himself. Lawyer Brown claims that the conversation of a barber is worth the price of a shave.

ASSISTANT SECRETARY OF THE TREASURY THOMPSON, who is Acting Secretary in Mr. Fairchild's absence, is mentioned as one of the handsomest members of the Government. He has a young face, snow-white hair, and a graceful manner.

OF course, there is a contest over the will of the late William A. Wheeler. He was a lawyer, but, like Tilden, could not make a will which would not create a struggle. Mr. Wheeler left the bulk of his small fortune to home and foreign missions. His will is contested on the ground that he was mentally unsound when he made the document.

MUNKACSY having been reported in straitened circumstances not long ago as the result of his own carelessness in money matters, his wife denies it in a private letter in which she says: "What I always admired particularly in my husband was his ability to live within his means; even in the days of his trials he never spent more than his income."

WOMEN OF THE WORLD.

MRS. WILBUR F. STOREY persistently declines all offers to sell her interest in the Chicago Times.

COUNTESS TELFENER, sister of Mrs. Mackay, has secured a separation from her husband, who doubtless worried her for money, as she received a handsome dowry from her bonanza brother-in-law.

A MISS AIKEN of Reeves, Ga., eloped last week with the man of her choice. She was followed by the watch-dog, and after the marriage ceremony she sent the dog home with a note attached to his collar imploring parental forgiveness.

MISS BERTHA OPPENHEIMER of Philadelphia is the latest victim of tight lacing. She expired in that city last week, and the verdict returned by the Coroner's jury was, "Heart disease, due to tight lacing." The woman was known to the variety stage as Nellie Parker.

THE wife of Prof. A. Graham Bell, although perfectly deaf, loses little of the table talk when she and her husband are entertaining a company at dinner. Without uttering a sound the famous inventor telegraphs with his lips nearly everything that is said, and she cleverly reads them as she would a book.

METROPOLITAN PRESS.

What the Editors of the New York Journals Are Saying This Morning.

By Telegraph to the POST-DISPATCH.

NEW YORK, October 10.—The WORLD says: "Congress is composed of the representatives of the States and people. It is an anachronism in our system that the legislative body does not meet till more than a year after its election. By calling Congress together in extra session the President can remedy in a measure this defect and save at least two months in the final disposition and prevention of the surplus. While the right thing is possible it is never too late to do it. Refer to Congress the surplus and the war taxes that produce it. And do it 'straightway.'"

THE SUN.

The Sun says: "The plain and simple question for the Secretary to decide is whether he will continue to pay the interest on millions of dollars of the public debt more than is necessary, and at the same time distress the entire commercial community for the sake of locking up money in the Treasury, or whether he will let out the money, stop the running of interest and relieve the necessities of the people. The latter is so evidently the proper course for him to take that we wonder he hesitates about it. Keep on buying bonds, Mr Secretary, keep on buying bonds."

THE TIMES.

The Times says: "We have already noted the extreme weakness of the case made out against ex-Speaker Carlisle by Thoebe, who contests the ex-Speaker's seat. It is so weak that Mr. Carlisle did not think it worth while to take testimony on it and rests his defense entirely on the cross-examination of Mr. Thoebe's witnesses. Our Washington correspondent yesterday explained in detail the nature of the charges made by Thoebe and the frank manner in which they are met by the ex-Speaker. It is needless to say that the matter will not in the least affect Mr. Carlisle's re-election to the office he held in the last Congress."

THE TRIBUNE.

The Tribune says: "The battle of Senator Gorman against the people of Maryland, deserves close attention. It is, in fact, the struggle of a party against the people; the fight of a Democratic administration against justice and law. Mr. Gorman's tools are President Cleveland's trusted officials. Mr. Gorman's ring is the Democratic party of Maryland. The methods by which he has beaten down opposition within his party, are precisely those by which his party overthrew Republicanism in that state, and the Senator's basest tools were sent to Ohio and Indiana to use the same methods for the defeat of Republicans and the election of Senators to support the Democratic President. For those efforts they have their reward in fat offices. Crimes like those which failed in Ohio, did succeed in certain Southern states and elected Mr. Cleveland President."

BASE BALL.—Boyle has caught more consecutive games than "Kid" Baldwin of Cincinnati, and more than any catcher on record.

O. S. B., Washington, Mo.—The general rule in horse sales is that the halter goes with the horse, but the matter has never been decided authoritatively.

CONSTANT READER.—It is not "necessary" for a lady to recognize her male fellow-employes on the street. She is a law unto herself in such a matter. Palo Alto is the name of towns in ten different States.

R. A. M., MARYVILLE, MO.—To get information about a patent and to find whether anything of the kind had been patented before, write to Hon. Benjamin J. Hall, Commissioner of Patents, Washington, D. C.

WM. RILEY.—Ten innings were played in the deciding game between the Browns and the Chicago Club for the championship of the world. The deciding run was made by Welch in the tenth, who came in from third base on what was either a wild pitch by Clarkson or a passed ball by Kelly, that question being a dispute, although Kelly himself said he was willing to have it scored as a passed ball. The score was: Browns, 4; Chicago, 3.

THE COLOR LINE.

ENGLAND THE PLACE FOR NEGROES DESIROUS OF SOCIAL RECOGNITION.

Free Intercourse Between Whites and Blacks in London—Negro Women With White Attendants the Only Noticeable Prejudice Among the Colored People—A Dusky Adonis.

By Telegraph to the POST-DISPATCH.

NEW YORK, October 10.—The World to-day publishes the following London letter from T. C. Crawford, under date of September 19: Colored people who are ambitious for association with white people and to escape the social inferiority of their position in the United States should emigrate to England. In this country there does not appear to be any prejudice against the colored brothers. In fact there appears to be a prejudice in his favor. There are not many negroes in England in proportion to the whites, but those who are here appear to be specially delighted with their situation. The negroes in England have free intercourse and companionship with the whites of a corresponding and even superior grade of education. I have seen any number of negro men out walking or riding with white men dressed respectably, and intelligent looking. It is also common enough to see negro women attended by clean cut, good-looking Englishmen. If the negro woman does not have a white attendant it is because she prefers one of her own race. I have seen a number of negro men and women here, but I have invariably seen them in company with whites. I do not remember having seen negro men and women in company. Having nearly the entire white population of Enland to pick and choose from, they have naturally shown a discrimination against their own color. The only noticeable prejudice, therefore, in England against the negro is from the negroes themselves. Last Sunday going up the river to Kew, there came on board the little steamer at the Chelsea pier a fair-complexioned, blue-eyed damsel. Her color was clear and her manner that of a neat housemaid or upper servant. She was dressed in black, with an astrachan fur cap flattened down on her yellow hair. She was in the company of the meanest-looking negro I have ever seen. He was small, lean and almost weazened, he was undersized and shabby. He had the unwholesome color of a very bad specimen of white trash, united with a degraded mulatto. He was a most mongrel representative of a bleached-out, degenerate bunch of the negro family. His eyes were small, catty and yellowish. His teeth were dirty, blackened and decayed. His scanty, ragged beard partly concealed his unwholesome-looking face. A thick mane, which was neither wool nor hair, but a dirty black mass somewhere between the two, stood out from his small head under a low-crowned soft hat. This degenerate specimen of humanity was looked up to by this fresh-faced, neatly dressed English maid as if he were a person of superior rank and position. As they sat down upon the side of the rail, her negro companion passed his lean, yellow-nailed hand round her waist under her cloak and gazed up into her clean-looking face with an expression of leering satisfaction. Such a spectacle in a public conveyance in the Southern regions would undoubtedly have led to their both being pitched overboard. As it was, no one but a small group of Americans on board the vessel appeared to notice this strange companionship.

A COLORED ADONIS.

I have been living this summer in what are called London residential flats, near Hyde Park. There are several porters employed about the flats. One of them is a New York negro, who acquired his education and knowledge of mankind as porter in a Pullman car, and afterwards in one of the New York hotels. He wears a double-breasted, brass-buttoned, blue frock livery, with round, flat-topped cap, which has a square visor. He is a most imposing individual; he has the soft, melodious voice of the best type of his race. He is a clean, manly-looking fellow. He is the hero of all the cooks and housemaids of the entire flats. This porter is on duty at night. He always moves about escorted by several admiring white servant girls. He hardly ever has less than six in his company. They stand in the most admiring positions. No Bunthorne was ever surrounded by more complete postures of adoration. But this porter takes all this admiration gravely. He evidently has a very poor opinion of white people who run after negroes. He permits the servant girls to run after him, but not much more. All of the girls speak to him with the prefix of "Mr." before his name. None of the white porters are honored in this way. They are all called by their first names, although two or three of them are men advanced in life and the heads of large families. The colored porter is always "Mr." Brooks. One of the tidiest of the servant girls, born and reared in the country, and who has not yet lost the fresh color acquired in her farm life, expressed the other day a fervent desire that when she had a husband she hoped he would be just such a nice black man as Mr. Brooks. Coming out of Paddington station the other morning I saw a four-wheeled cab drive up with a rattle and crash. Its top was covered with trunks, bags and boxes. Six fresh-faced railroad porters stood in line to receive this splendid array of baggage. The door of the cab opened and out stepped a regular-featured, wholesome, alert, active-looking man in clerical dress. Whether a member of the English or the Catholic Church was not apparent from his dress. After him came a tall, dark negro girl dressed in all the hues of the rainbow. A great yellow be-ribboned hat perched on the top of her tightly twisted and crinkled hair—she was about three-fourths black. The tones of yellow shone in the high lights on her dusky face. She was about eighteen, and I supposed she was a servant girl. There followed directly after her another negro woman, also gaily dressed and about the same shade of color, and after her come still another still blacker, shorter, stouter and evidently the chaperon of the party. It was clear that they were not colored sisters of charity. They were

TOO GAILY DRESSED FOR THAT.

They stood about perfectly at their ease and appeared to regard the clergyman who was with them as a person whose only occupation in life was to look after them. It was he who took charge of all the baggage and who bought all of the tickets, and kept running to them with suggestions for their comfort and convenience, and when it was time for the train, it was the youngest one, who wore the yellow-ribboned hat, perched high upon her head, who took his arm, and with a real cake-walk swagger marched to a first-class compartment, followed by her dusky companions. This compartment was specially reserved, and when the train pulled out the priest sat facing his three colored fairies, listening with rapture and attention to their every wish and gleeful giggles, which occasionally broke into real darkey laughter. Viewing the utter absence of prejudice against colored people in England, I don't think better advice could be given to colored people who are ambitious, than to come here. Those in the South, who have had their political aspirations cut short by the energetic action of white leaguers, by the insinuation of the tissue ballots and by excessive skill on the part of whites in counting votes, should by all means come to England. There is nothing here to stand in the way of their advancement. They would be able to strengthen at once a naturally prominent position freely accorded to them by the English masses. By judicious marriage, backed by the admiration of the white race, I don't see what should stand between them and Parliament, or even the Cabinet. The English are very fond of oratory, and the negroes with us have a special gift in that direction. One of the most eloquent negroes who ever spoke in Congress, Elliott, a simon-pure negro, received his education at the University of Oxford, England.

Not Much Work.

Maj. A. M. Miller, Corps of Engineers, U. S. A., reports that owing to a lack of funds nothing much is being done by the Mississippi River Commission between this point and Cairo. A small party is engaged at Bushberg in making a hydrographic survey of the river, with a view of determining the width and depth of the channel and the amount of sediment deposited behind the numerous wing dams constructed near that point. Another small construction party is engaged at Jim Smith's repairing and strengthening the existing works at that point.

Mr. and Mrs. Thos. H. Ellis of Lancaster, N. H., who have been spending the past week in the city, leave this week to return home.

Miss Mattie Williams of Bloomington, Ill., spent last week delightfully with St. Louis friends. She returns home early this week.

Miss Ella Claggett of Lexington, Mo., after enjoying the carnival last week, leaves to-day to visit Mrs. W. P. Bradshaw of Edwardsville.

Mrs. T. J. Watson of Palmyra has returned home after spending the past week delightfully with Mrs. McElhenny at her suburban home.

Mr. and Mrs. Rohrer, formerly of South St. Louis, arrived last week from California, where he has been residing for the past ten years.

Mrs. Davidson and Mrs. Wilson of Kansas City returned home on Saturday after spending the week of the carnival at the Southern Hotel.

Mrs. Lewis H. Chapman and daughters will leave Pass Christian for New Orleans about the 1st of November, where they will spend the winter.

Maj. and Mrs. J. J. Sutter return this week to their home at Palmyra after spending the carnival season with Mrs. Stevens at her country home.

Mrs. Dr. Fisher of Washington avenue gave a dinner-party on Wednesday evening, when covers were laid for eight and an elaborate menu was served.

Mr. W. B. Addington leaves in a fortnight to join his wife and little daughter in the East, where they have been spending a couple of months with relatives.

Miss Minnie Shockley of Carrollton and Miss Matie Scott of Illinois, who have been visiting Miss Middlebrook, will leave early this week to return to their homes.

Mrs. Lane Howell has been called home sooner than she anticipated, and left to-day for her husband's post at Fort Laramore, where she will remain all winter.

Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Hammett are in Washington City, where they went last Friday to place their daughter at the Mount Vernon Seminary. They will be absent only a few days.

Mrs. St. Gem of Ste. Genevieve will leave this week to join her daughter, Mrs. Ebert, at Baltimore, where Mrs. Ebert has decided to reside in future, with the relatives of her deceased husband.

Miss Rosa Schumacher was married October 5 to Mr. Frederick Heege of Kirkwood. The ceremony was performed by Father Pommer of St. Malachy's Church. Mr. and Mrs. Heege will reside in Kirkwood.

Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Trezevant, who arrived from Europe about ten days ago, and have been guests of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Lackland, returned the latter part of the week to their home at Dallas, Texas.

Mrs. Talmage has given up her home on Washington avenue near Grand and will take a house further down in the city on the same street. Col. and Mrs. Jno. O'Fallon will take immediate possession of the Talmage mansion.

General Belknap, while in the city, visited his niece, Mrs. Lyne S. Metcalf. He has recently returned from a visit to his wife, who is in Europe educating their daughter, and anticipates taking a residence in Washington for the winter.

On Thursday evening a delightful surprise party was given at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Wolff. A number of friends drove out from the city to their home in the suburbs, where they were heartily welcomed and a pleasant evening was spent.

Miss Gladys Wilkinson was married October 5 to Mr. Benjamin Brooks. The ceremony took place at the residence of the bride's father, Mr. Samuel J. Wilkinson, Rev. Dr. Lewis of Kirkwood, officiating. Only the relatives and intimate friends were in attendance.

The Cashier Skipped.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., October 10.—A special to the Evening Wisconsin from Green Bay says: The Merchants' and Miners' Bank of Iron Mountain, Michigan, closed on Saturday. It is understood that the cashier has skipped to Canada with $15,000.

DETROIT'S ARRIVAL.

THE "SOUTH PAW" SLUGGERS CREATE A SENSATION AT THE LINDELL.

Manager Watkins Insists That He Is Carrying Fourteen Men, Including Himself—Big Thompson Never Saw the Browns Play Ball—The Revised Schedule—Other Arrangements—Base Ball News and Gossip—Diamond Clips—Sporting Notes.

Fourteen big, strong, strapping men—not thirteen, understand—walked into the Lindell Hotel last night. Their immense stature attracted much attention and caused some speculation as to their identity among the guests who lolled around the lobby. A bootblack, who was regarding the crowd, finally unveiled the mystery by saying to his partner near by: "Say, Jimmy, dere's big Thompson!" Then the amount of familiarity with the indentity of the party which pervaded the crowd of guests and chair-boarders was something alarming.

"Why, it's the Detroits; don't you know them?" said a little man with red whiskers to a friend with a rubber coat.

"Know them!" exclaimed he of the rubber with considerable indignation at what he considered a slur; "what do you take me for?"

On through the crowd the big fellows strode with stately steps, and a little man with a blond mustache stepped up to the registry-book and wrote thereon the following words:

"THE DETROIT BASE BALL CLUB, Brouthers, Richardson, Rowe, Dunlap, Baldwin, Thompson, Bennett, Getzein, Ganzel, Twitchell, Conway, Hanlon, White, Watkins."

The last name the little man wrote was his own, and when he was seen this morning by a reporter for the POST-DISPATCH the first thing he said was: "You want to make no mistake about the number of men we're carrying. We're carrying fourteen men and not thirteen."

"But you are the manager, Mr. Watkins, not a player?"

"That's all right, but I'm a man and I'm carrying myself with the club. We have no thirteen in ours. It's a Jonah."

After he relieved himself of this sentiment in a matter which was as earnest as he could make it, Manager Watkins said that his men were never in better condition than they are now. Brouthers, who injured his ankle in the game at Indianapolis Saturday, was not around as he was nursing his foot. Brouthers can stand up but he cannot run and therefore he cannot play. He will not appear in either of the games here, and his place at first base will be filled by White, Richardson, who is an all-around player, going to third. Twitchell, the pitcher-fielder, will play left field and the rest of the team will play their regular position.

HANLAN TALKS.

"Brouthers' ankle is pretty badly hurt," said Captain Hanlan, "and we can't say when he will be able to play. We will play Twitchell until Brouthers comes around all right. Twitchell is a good player, and though he is not quite as hard a hitter as Brouthers, he is a first-class man, and will hold up his end in the field and at the bat."

"You'll win, of course?"

"Well, we'll try."

"On whom will the main stress of pitching fall?"

"We'll pitch all our pitchers in these games, Baldwin, Getzein and Conway, Getzein going in in to-day's game. The pitchers for the other games, of course, will depend on their condition and how they work against the St. Louis Club."

"I've never seen the Browns play ball," said big Thompson, "and I'd like to see them, of course. I hear they play a different game from most clubs, and I've heard and read so much about them that I can almost fancy just how they will play before I see them."

"Do you fear Caruthers?"

"Oh, no, said Hanlon, "we generally find that we can hit a pitcher pretty hard after we bat against him two or three games. There's no telling what you're going to do with a pitcher when you tackle him for the first time. After we get accustomed to Caruthers' delivery I suppose we can do something with him if we fail to do it in the opening game."

DETROITERS HERE.

President Stearns and a party of the directors of the club and visitors arrived from Detroit yesterday morning. Among them were Mr. Vail, the Vice-President; Mr. P. H. Leadly, the Secretary, and Messrs. Gray, Edson and Smith, directors of the Detroit Club. The newspaper contingent are F. W. Baker of the Evening Journal, C. F. Mathison of the Free Press, and G. A. Tomlinson of the Tribune. They are all brilliant writers on base ball and handsome men personally and pleasant men socially. They will accompany the team throughout the entire trip.

THE REVISED SCHEDULE.

It might be well to print a revised edition of the schedule of the great games. After to-day's game the following order will be observed:

At St. Louis	Tuesday, October 11
At Detroit	Wednesday, October 12
At Pittsburg	Thursday, October 13
At Brooklyn	Friday, October 14
At New York	Saturday, October 15
At Philadelphia (League Park)	Monday, October 17
At Boston	Tuesday, October 18
At Philadelphia (Athletic Park)	Wed'day, October 19
At Washington	Thursday, October 20
At Baltimore	Friday, October 21
At Brooklyn	Saturday, October 22

Mr. Von der Ahe has not given up all hope of arranging a game at Cincinnati and the last game abroad will be played at Louisville, October 26. If rain interferes at any of these cities the city will be skipped and the next town taken in. The receipts are to be divided on a basis of 75 per cent to the winner and 25 per cent to the loser on the series and not on the games as was first announced. Gaffney of Washington and Kelly of Louisville will act as umpires for the entire series. The umpire at the first game to-day is to be decided by the toss of a coin. Thereafter Gaffney and Kelly will alternate as umpires. Both men are eminently satisfactory to all parties as Kelly will not care to favor the Browns or Gaffney the Detroits. Neither is dependent upon his abilities as an umpire for a living and will therefore have no cause whatever to play favorite with either team.

To-Morrow's Game.

In to-morrow's game, in which "play" will be called at 3 o'clock, the men on their respective clubs will be placed as follows:

St. Louis.	Position.	Detroit.
Foutz	Pitcher	Baldwin
Bushong	Catcher	Bennett
Comiskey	First base	White
Robinson	Second base	Dunlap
Gleason	Short stop	Rowe
Latham	Third base	Richardson
O'Neill	Left field	Twitchell
Welch	Center field	Hanlon
Caruthers	Right field	Thompson

Won the Last Game.

The Browns yesterday defeated the Clevelands in the rain. King and Gilks were the pitchers, and the silver-headed champion labored well against Mr. Williams' heavy hitters. The champions scored 6 runs, 12 hits and 6 errors, and the Clevelands 2 runs, 6 hits and 5 errors.

Cincinnati beat Louisville yesterday. Score, 9 to 0.

At Ridgewood Park yesterday the Mets beat Brooklyn. The score was 6 to 2.

The Parade.

The base ball parade to-day in which the parties to the great world's championship games were to have participated did not come off as anticipated. There was some trouble in getting the Detroit players to agree to go in the parade and when, finally, they did consent to go, they proved a vexatious delay to the whole movement. The start was fixed at 10 o'clock from the Southern Hotel, but it was after the noon hour when the parade got off, and then it was in sections. A big crowd turned out to see it, and notwithstanding the rainy weather seemed to think the show was worth coming out to see. As much of the order as possible, as printed in yesterday's POST-DISPATCH, was observed, but it was found impracticable, owing to the lateness of the hour of the start, to follow the route as mapped out. A short drive around the streets took the place of the intended route and the carriages were greeted on every side with cheers. The rain was responsible for the delay.

Clips and Chips.

Pittsburg is reaching out for Sowders, the St. Paul pitcher. A difference of $200 prevents him signing just now.

Bennett did not get to catching until late in the season but when he did start in he caught in twenty-two consecutive games before taking a rest.

Manager Cavlor has struck a new idea. He is going on the road with a patent fire escape, which is warranted to save life in any kind of a fire if rightly used.—[N. Y. Star.

Young Joe Murphy was asked the other day if he knew many of the Detroit players. "Oh no," said he, "I only know Thompson, and I've good cause to. He once made two home runs off me in one day."

Sunday, it is reported, will play in Chicago next year with the proposed Northwestern League club. His case is a good deal like that of Hugh Nicol—he is wanting in confidence. Nicol went into the American Association, and is doing splendid work.

The purchase of the Mets by the Brooklyn Club management will of course necessitate the Indians abandoning the reservation on Staten Island. Thus the question naturally arises: Will there be a club on Staten Island next year, and will it be the Detroit League team of 1887?—The WORLD.

In an interview Pitcher Clarkson of Chicago says that the result of the St. Louis-Detroit games will depend upon the condition of the St. Louis pitchers and Detroit's batters. "The Wolverines, I think," says he, "will win, yet I believe the Philadelphias would make a stronger fight against the Browns, because both clubs are up-hill players."

The Philadelphia Club took second place in the League. Manager Schmelz has arranged two games with the Phillies, to be played at Cincinnati October 26 and 27, as they will pass through that town en route to California. The Cincinnati Club has an open date October 28, and an effort will be made to have the Philadelphias increase the series to three games.

Yesterday, in practising at Pittsburg for the throwing contest, which takes place in Cincinnati next week, Ed Williamson threw a ball a distance of 133 yards 1 foot, or within 7½ inches of Hatfield's famous throw. The record would have been broken had Carroll allowed the ball to strike the ground, but he caught it on a fly about waist high. The distance from where Williamson stood to where Carroll caught the ball was measured and found to be within 7½ inches of the record.—[The WORLD.

The Syracuse Stars disbanded last week, and a sorer lot of players never was seen. Ollie Beard found, on casting up accounts, that he owed the club $27, having been fined $100. This was to steal his $73 salary. Dundon was assessed $50 for something or another, and a fine of $50 imposed early in the season was also collected. Bittman was soaked for $50; and "Lefty" Marr got away with his life. This is nothing but the vilest kind of thievery, and the boys ought to have the manager, Mr. Simmons, and the directors arrested for grand larceny.

BICYCLE BUDGET.

Crossing the Ocean Awheel—Making Records on Hills—Notes.

A bicycling paper has the following announcement of the latest application of the bicycle: "It is claimed that Mr. Fred. F. Campau of Detroit has invented a marine velocipede that will make a mile in a minute and a half, or about forty miles an hour, and which will cross from New York to Queenstown in two days and a half. The wheels are fourteen feet in diameter. Properly speaking, they are double wheels, two on each end of the shaft. Between each double wheel is a twenty-inch space. This is to be boarded over, and the entire wheel covered with canvas, so as to make it water-tight. Paddles are to be placed on the outside of each wheel. The length of the shaft between the wheels is 11 feet. The shaft does not turn, the wheels revolving on "sleeves," and the motive-power consists of cog-wheels operated by a simple system of cranks and levers. The wheels are constructed of wood. Attached to the shaft, and projecting straight out 31 feet, are what look like the thills of a wagon, only they join at the ends. On these are to be placed a platform, on which passengers will be carried. Near the end of the thills will be placed the steering apparatus, which will consist of a small boat-shaped affair, worked by cords from the platform. It is calculated that a weight of about 1,000 pounds will not submerge the wheels more than fifteen inches. The circumference of the wheels is forty-four feet, and, operated by a lever, they will make 100 revolutions in a minute, and will cover 4,400 feet in the same brief space of time. The machine Mr. Campau has now on hand is to carry from fifteen to twenty persons with ease and without danger. It suggests possibilities of formidable competition with passenger steamers. A public trial of the flyer is promised about two weeks hence. There is a bare possibility that a practical test will not absolutely sustain and justify all of Mr. Campau's statements and expectations."

Bicycling in England.

LONDON, October 10.—Jules Dubois, the French champion, defeated Woodside of Philadelphia, in a twenty-mile bicycle race at Leicester. Temple of Chicago easily defeated Medinger of Paris in a one-mile bicycle race at Shields.

Notes.

Woodside, Temple and Morgan will remain abroad till spring.

Dr. Emery of the Roxbury (Mass.) club is in the city and is being entertained by local wheelmen.

Quite a party of St. Louis wheelmen will visit Quincy, Ill., to take part in the reunion on October 11, 12, and 13. Several will enter the hill-climbing contest.

In the old coaching days, it took from fourteen to sixteen days to travel from London to Edinburgh. The same distance is now ridden by bicyclists in less than three days.

There is a good deal of talk about an editorial road race. If it should come off reasonably near St. Louis, it is not unlikely that the POST-DISPATCH would be represented.

The WORLD says that the illuminated aprade of the Kings County Wheelmen the other night was a beautiful and picturesque procession. Those who saw a similar parade in St. Louis last fall, the first successful one, by the way, ever held, will not doubt this.

For the first time since wheel racing has amounted to anything, a year is going to close without any racing by George Hendee, the only American who has ever been a match for Rowe. There was some hope that George would take to the track again this fall, but the announcement is now made that he is to make a drumming tour through the South for the next six months, which will keep him busy well into 1888.

The friends of the former secretary-editor of the League of American Wheelmen, E. M. Aaron, are treated to another surprise in the last issue of the American Athlete of Philadelphia. That paper has always been supposed to be an Aaron organ and partly controlled by him. The editor, John A. Wells, now announces that he believes Aaron was guilty, and that he has dropped him. He denies that Aaron ever had any pecuniary interest in the paper.

The reason announced by Overman for selecting the hilly course at Clarksville for record-breaking is because there is no chance for a cut-off and the rider must go the entire distance. Poor Schock will change his mind when he shall have to climb that long hill out of the town fifteen times in twenty-four hours. The team was quartered at Springfield, O., waiting for the start of the 1,000-mile road race, but when that was abandoned the men were brought right on to Clarksville, past the elegant turnpikes of Ohio and Indiana. There is a suspicion that Overman is training his men for hill climbers. He announces that he will spend ten days going for the records, beginning with last Friday. So far, owing to accidents, nothing has been done. Overman asks the other teams to join his and make the trials competitive.

Sporting Notes.

The M. A. A. C. sports were postponed yesterday until next Sunday, same hour.

Mambrino Startle, a full brother to Majolica, 2:15, will start in the 3:00 class at Lexington, Ky., this week.

The autumn meeting of the American Jockey Club now in progress at Jerome Park is the twenty-second that has been given under the auspices of that organization.

The proposed match between Harry Wilkes and Belle Hamlin is off, also the 2:24 class, which was announced for the same day at Chicago. The Patron-Jay-Eye-See race goes, and will be trotted next Saturday.

The Coney Island Jockey Club has determined to build a straight track of three-quarters of a mile. For the satisfaction of an officer of the club, Mr. Charles H. Haswell was asked to make a calculation, taking the present three-quarter-mile course as a basis, showing how much farther a horse would run starting thirty feet from the pole, than the pole horse. The result proves that the outside horse would have to cover 93 feet 4½ inches more than the inside one, which at a 1:14 gait is equivalent to nearly 1¾ sec.

George Oyster's education has clearly been neglected. Among experienced trainers of two-year-olds the schooling of the young things in breaking at the post forms an important part of their education. Wyndham Walden, during the days when the success of his two-year-olds in the colors of the late George Lorillard became a proverb, made a special feature of this. Regularly each season he would come to Jerome Park in May, and the lightning rushes of his youngsters swept the two-year-old board. We are not apt to go frantic over horses, but we certainly think that had George Oyster been handled earlier and learned to break quickly he would hold his own with any colt out this season, as he always showed more speed at the finish than any.—[Wilkes' Spirit.

A MURDEROUS BAND.

The Slayers of Harry Taylor and Wife Held for the Grand-Jury.

GREENWOOD, Miss., October 10.—Prophet Segur, Mike Brown, Robert Brown, Maj. Mac-John Hinton, Robert Owen, Wash Johnson and Wash Scott, the negroes charged with the killing of Harry Taylor and wife, after a hearing before Justice Parker have been, with the exception of the last named, who gave bond, committed to jail without the benefit of bond, to await the action of the Grand-jury and were brought here for safe-keeping. Morton Ford, who is also in jail, will have a preliminary examination to-day, and probably some others not yet arrested. There is clear evidence against them and they will no doubt be convicted. During the preliminary trial it was discovered that a resolution to kill Mr. Kerney, a white man who had a fight with one of their brothers, whose arm he had broken, was passed at one of their meetings but the time appointed for the deed had not yet come. Two days were consumed in taking testimony and many other negroes have been implicated. There is no doubt that a colored man, a member of the Dry Bayou Lodge of negro Masons, was killed by Harry Taylor, and that both Harry Taylor and his wife had disappeared, a body answering to Taylor's being found in the river with marks of violence upon it. The body had been weighted down. The lodges in this county were organized by a negro named Stringer, who claims to be working under the authority of the Grand Orient of France. Their lodge was founded in 1882. Several other lodges have been founded in this section. The colored Masons are not recognized by the white Masons at all, and their order is not under the authority of the Old York Order of Masonry. It is hard to say whether they have an obligation that teaches them to avenge, slay, etc., or whether they construe the obligations they take to suit themselves. The white people of the county are determined to break up their lodges and to punish the guilty members of this death-dealing order. The Circuit Court, when it meets, will decide upon matters.

A LIVELY FIRE

Suppressed in One-Two-Three Order by the Fire Department This Morning.

What promised to be a lively fire broke out at No. 1022 and 1024 North Broadway in an empty building, formerly occupied by the Nortwestern Livery and Sale Stable, at 10:15 this morning. The origin of the fire is unknown, but when the Department arrived the entire upper story was ablaze, and the flames threatened to destroy the entire building. Assistant Chief Gross was in charge, and by careful management the fire was confined to the upper story. The work of the firemen was simplified by the fact that the building was empty, for if the stable had been in operation it would have been exceedingly difficult to clear the stable of its occupants, and an equine holocaust would have been the result. As it was the wicker work character of the interior fittings of the building promised to give the Fire Department lots of trouble, but the fire was quickly suppressed.

The building is owned by Martha E. McKnight, and John Byrne, Jr., is the agent, but the amount of insurance is not known. The interior of the building will have to be totally reconstructed.

The Mock Naval Engagement in Newport Harbor To-Morrow Evening.

By Telegraph to the POST-DISPATCH.

NEWPORT, R. I., October 10.—The presence of eight ships of war in Newport harbor, including the old training flagship New Hampshire, has greatly revived a waning season. This week will doubtless be one of great interest. Admiral Luce is to test whether or not our modern ships of war can be surprised by a flotilla of swift topedo-boats. For that purpose the United States steel cruiser Atlanta has been selected to stand the test. The attack will be made by a large number of boats, all at one time, which makes it so much harder for the defense. The cruiser Atlanta will be stripped for battle, officers and crew will be called to general headquarters and the ship cleared ready for action. The test will be a fair one and a number of umpires will be appointed to take station in each of the attacking boats and on board of the Atlanta. The attacking force will be under Commander Colby M. Chester of the corvette Galena. All the officers from the navy war college at Coaster's Harbor will be present to witness the engagement, which is to take place Tuesday night.

BLAINE'S CANDIDACY.

Gov. Bodwell of Maine Denies Remarks Attributed to Him.

By Telegraph to the POST-DISPATCH.

AUGUSTA, Me., October 10.—Gov. J. R. Bodwell last evening was asked if he said, while in Philadelphia, that "Blaine would be again a candidate and would be elected."

"No, I never made any such statement, and I was misquoted. If it was to-day, I have no doubt he would be nominated and elected, but one can not tell what a year may bring forth. I don't believe his friends would urge him for the candidacy, unless it should be evident that he would receive strong and very general support in the convention."

Boston's Bad Boys.

By Telegraph to the POST-DISPATCH.

BOSTON, October 10.—A band of youthful burglars has been arrested in this city, composed of boys between 13 and 17 years of age. They confessed to numerous burglaries in the business section. They hired a room on Tabor street, where they planned their expeditions. The room was decorated with fire-arms, pictures of noted desperadoes, while sand-bags and other lethal weapons were also found. Some of the boys have respectable parents.

BIG EXCURSIONISTS.

They're taking their trip just where we've our stores. We wish them a pleasant journey and safe return. St. Louis, Pittsburg, Chicago, Louisville favor us with a large business. Our styles are not local; our work known through the country. Our trade is national, and our tastes and styles are acknowledged to be standard.

The English and Irish Overcoats.

(Second day's show of our own Importation of Over-garments made for us).

We place a high estimate on both facts.

We got them at first hands, and we got Overcoats to take rank beside our own: the best on the ground.

It's not absolutely true that all the best things are got from abroad: not half true. There's as squalid clothing lying abroad, side by side, almost, with the first-class, as anywhere. The good has to be chosen out. We only got the good: the very good.

The novelty of it is two-fold: the peculiar cut of the garments, and the materials used.

Cape Coats are an example: Over-all Overcoats, another: Ulsters, and other Greatcoats, lined to make a Manitoba storm bearable: Overcoats to meet the gracefulest occasion.

We got but a morsel-quantity of any of them. Aren't aiming at making foreign Overcoats the standby of our trade! Not at all. The uppermost thought just now is to imprint our leadership in our business on you—that we have the best clothing:—the best—no matter whose!

Be critical with them! The prices are charming for the quality and art in them. There mayn't be enough for all who'll want.

THE BUDGET OF DEACON BURDETTE.

Flashes of Fun From the Humorist of the "Brooklyn Eagle."

"Papa," said Ethel, "I do not think you are just to Mr. Sophtomore; I was talking with him last night. His head is full of ideas." "Yes, yes," said the professor, and went on reading the proof of his lecture on "Microscopic Thought;" "'we cannot realize the infinite littleness of the cholera bacteria, when we know that 30,000,000,000 of them occupy a space no larger than a pin's head.' Yes, yes; as you say, he has a great many ideas; but they are——" goes on reading proof.

In one year the tornado reporter of the United States Signal Service predicted 3,228 tornadoes, and 3,201 tornadoes happened. What we want is not so much a man to prophesy tornadoes as a man to stand at the front gate with a club and drive them over into boodle land, or anywhere away from our country.

Class in modern history stands up—"How many dancing girls has King Kalakaua?" Smart bad boy: "None." Teacher: "But this paper says he has twenty." Smart bad boy: "That was when his wife was in Europe."

Young Mr. Sawbones, first year in medical college; sees an editorial headed "The Danger of Apathy." "The incomprehensible ignorance of these editors," he exclaims grandly; "they write about things of which they know absolutely nothing. Now, you take apathy in time and there isn't a dangerous feature in it; the veriest quack can handle it." Puts on his hat and goes out to look for a case of incipient inertia.

"'What do you do for a living, Tom?" asks the old college chum. "Do? I don't do anything; I undo." "Eh?" "I'm a divorce lawyer." "Oh!"

Lawyer Bulldozer: Do you kow anything about George Thorpe? Stupid witness: Yes, sir. Lawyer B.: Ah, you do? Do you know any good about him? Witness—No, sir. "O, you don't? Well then, do you know anything bad about him?" Witness—No, sir. "Then, for mercy's sake, what do you know about him?" "I know he died twenty years before I ever heard of him."

A Boston broker lost a wallet containing $15,000 on the street and a newsboy found it and brought it to the owner. The man struggled with a terrible temptation to be mean and sordid for a moment, and then, forgetting self and casting to the winds his greed of gain as he trampled the temptation under his feet, gave the honest boy permission to go on the common and play every day. "We can trust you," sobbed the grateful man; "we know that you will keep off the grass." Oh, how often this opportunity to make others happy by a kind word, a gentle smile or some little act of kindness knocks at our door and we heed it not, until it is too late. Oh, that more people were like the Boston man. (P. S.—They are.)

"Well," said the good boy, withdrawing his hand from the river with a shiver, "there's one comfort comes with October. A fellow can go home without a dread of being called upon to explain how come his shirt wrong side out, or what made his hair so wet." And he wondered as he walked along if a fellow should stain his hands all over with walnut juice if they wouldn't look so much like brown kids that nobody would know the difference.

Where, O where, has the young man gone who graduation clothes put on, some time along the last of May, and owned the whole wide world for a day? And where is the sweet girl graduate, who chanted an essay dread with fate, and started out with a giggling frown to turn this old world upside down? And where is last year's candidate who had things fixed for this year's slate? Who carried around, as you'd believe a couple of counties in his sleeve? And where is the scribe with a vaulting will who tried a long felt want to fill, and courted shekels and renown with a minion paper in a burgeois town? The lad has divided the world up fair, and holds but his own eight-billionth share; the sweet girl grad. is a grand surprise and conquers the world with well-made pies; the candidate with the deathless "gall" is fixing himself for another fall; while the journalist with the haughty crest has gone the way of last year's nest. So year by year and day by day the world runs on in the same old way; the balloon that is biggest round about is the flabbiest rag when the gas is out.

By good authority mosquito has been spelled in thirteen different ways. This leads one to believe that it must have been named by Shakspeare. Still, no matter what strange spell is on him, he never changes his nature or his tipple. Berlood, Eargo, ber-lood.

The Costly Liver-Pad.

Clara Belle in San Francisco Call.

The New York woman says when she goes down the steps in June and looks behind her at the tightly closed house, "Oh, how nice it will be to come back next September." I hope every woman did not make the mistake that Mrs. Careful did. She was on her way to Europe, and after she was seated in the carriage bound for the boat she remembered a liver-pad that she had bought for the old man.

"I'll just run back to the parlor for it," said she.

"Don't be a fool, but stop at the druggist's and buy another," said he.

"As if I would, after buying that," and out she climbed.

With three keys she let herself in, flew to the parlor, turned up the gas with the electric key and searched. Then she ran up to the front room, lighted the chandelier and found the pad. She triumphantly made her way out of the house, locked it carefully up again and rode away in victory, having had her way and saved an outlay of 75 cents. This was on June 3. She arrived here on September 3, and was astonished at opening her house to find the parlors cheerfully lighted to receive her. She had forgotten to turn off the gas, and for three months, night and day, two burners have blazed away and illuminated the industry of the merry moth and the beautiful buffalo bug. When her husband pays his summer gas bill he will think liver pads the most expensive things he ever struck.

ATTORNEYS IN LIMBO.

GEN. AYRES TO MAKE APPLICATION FOR A WRIT OF HABEAS CORPUS.

The Question Involved in the Richmond Contempt Case—A Delicate Point in American Jurisprudence—Views of a Prominent Virginia Lawyer—The Imprisoned Attorneys.

By Telegraph to the POST-DISPATCH.

WASHINGTON, D. C., October 10.—The arrest of the Attorney-General of Virginia and the Commonwealth Attorney for Fauquier County was the subject of a good deal of comment here yesterday. "It is believed that it may lead to serious and sensational developments," said a prominent Virginia lawyer, who has occupied a seat on the bench for a number of years. It is not quite clear to me on what ground the Attorney-General and Mr. Scott are posing as martyrs by going to jail in preference to paying a fine. Judge Bond is one of the most arbitrary men on the Federal bench. He was appointed by President Grant, and has never lost an opportunity to insult the South. I cannot recall a single instance, except in reconstruction days, of an interference by the United States with the officials of State in their official capacity. Such an act before the war would have been regarded as an outrage and would have made serious trouble. State rights were not destroyed by the war but State sovereignty was. The right of the Federal authorities to interfere with the authorities of a State is one of the most delicate points in our jurisprudence. Justice Miller of the Supreme Court, in his address delivered in Philadelphia, said the Federal authorities could not observe too much care in interfering with the rights of a State. Upon the merits of the present case there can be no doubt as to the power of Judge Bond to grant an injunction to restrain the State from bringing suit in the coupon cases. The Supreme Court has decided that these coupons are receivable for taxes. An act of the Legislature of Virginia says they shall not be received for tax. The State officers have therefore refused to receive these coupons in payment of taxes, and the State has commenced suits to recover taxes from parties tendering the coupons. It is possible that Attorney-General Ayres does not believe the decision of the Supreme Court applies definitely to the cases in point. He may also assume that as an officer of the State he is sworn to execute the laws, and believes the obligation of his oath to the State is paramount to any other consideration.

THE SITUATION GRAVE.

"It is plain that the situation is one of grave concern. If the State of Virginia is compelled to receive these coupons in the payment of taxes, her treasury will soon be filled with nothing but coupons. In her present bankrupt condition, that would place the State in a very embarrassing predicament. It would seem that in the exigencies of the situation the State has no other course but to refuse to accept these coupons. I met a friend of Scott here to-day. He said Mr. Scott had given the matter careful consideration before defying the Federal Court, and believed he was doing his duty. These men, however, cannot be kept in perpetual confinement. They are now in the custody of the marshal of the court, who is a Democrat. They cannot be confined in any State or county prison except by the consent of the local authorities, and none but convicted criminals can be taken to a Federal penitentiary."

INTERVIEWED IN JAIL.

What Gen. Ayres Says Regarding His Case—Habeas Corpus Proceedings.

By Telegraph to the POST-DISPATCH.

RICHMOND, Va., October 10.—Attorney-General Ayres and Mr. Scott, Commonwealth Attorney of Fauquier, were called on by the POST-DISPATCH correspondent last night at the City Jail, where they are confined for refusing to pay the fine assessed against them Saturday for contempt by Judge Bond of the United States Circuit Court. Both were in excellent spirits despite the fact that their area of movement is quite circumscribed. Their quarters are comfortable, though by no means luxurious. They occupy them of their own volition rather than have the escort of a United States Marshal with the freedom of the city.

Gen. Ayre said: "My counsel will possibly have my application for a wait of habeas corpus ready by Monday evening, in which event it will be presented to one or more Judges of the United States Supreme Court in Washington on Tuesday. My counsel are decidedly of the opinion that the Supreme Court must determine on the application whether the Circuit Judge had jurisdiction of the injunction cases from which the contempt issued, and if it determines that he had none, of course I will be freed from penalty. Should the reverse be the issue, Mr. Scott and myself will be remanded to the custody of the United States Marshal with no recourse left but to pay the fine. If the Supreme Court justifies Judge Bond it will render futile all future attempts at obstructive legislation on the part of the General Assembly of Virginia, as he will have it in his power to declare them unconstitutional. The issue will then lie with the patriotism of the people, whether they pay their taxes to carry on business in money or coupons."

JUDGE BOND'S PREVIOUS ACTION.

Gen. Ayres says Judge Bond attempted to exercise similar jurisdiction in South Carolina a short time ago, in the case of Hagood vs. Southern, and that he was promptly reversed by the United States Supreme Court. Some of the most prominent lawyers in this city and throughout the State are highly indignant at the decision of Judge Bond, while others justify his action. By the people generally the question is deemed not to be one of merely dollars and cents, but it is looked on as one involving the autonomy of the State by the usurpation of a Federal Judge, and as such is of interest alike to all the States of the Union. Here is the way that the Governor looks at the matter:

"Judge Bond is opposed," he said, "to the opinions of the best legal minds in the State, such men as Judges Irving, McLaughlin, Keith, John Randolph Tucker, and a host of others. An usurpating Federal Judge can take away the liberties of the people by such methods as they can be manacled by arms. The Virginia people are law-abiding, and the case will be carried by a habeas corpus to the Supreme Court. All the States of the Union are interested in preserving their constitutional rights, and if the Supreme Court sustains this Federal Judge, the sooner the States insist on an amendment to the Federal constitution protecting, defining and preserving their rights from such encroachments, the better, or our whole form of Government will be altered and an empire will replace a republic."

A Georgia Farmer's Benevolence Rewarded by a Pile of Money.

Atlanta Letter.

A pretty little romance has just reached an interesting culmination in Rabun County. At the base of the Tiger Mountain, half a mile off the main road leading to Clayton, resides a sober old farmer named George W. Dillard, who has a wife and two sons. Early last summer Mr. Dillard received a letter from his wife's brother, whom he had not seen since 1849. At that time James McCurrie was a young man, as was also George W. Dillard. The news had reached Georgia of the wonderful gold discoveries in California.

Among those who were full of the excitement were McCurrie and Dillard. They had perfected all arrangements for going thither, and were bidding the family good-bye when Dillard faltered. The tearful eyes of McCurrie's young sister touched his heart, especially as she was weeping for him and not for her brother. Throwing down his bundle, he declared that he would stay if the girl would marry him. To this she cheerfully agreed, so Dillard remained a Georgia farmer, while McCurrie jumped into the stage-coach and was borne away. Since that time he has never been heard of.

It was with mingled feelings, therefore, that Dillard read the letter from his old comrade. McCurrie stated that he had worked against adverse fortune, declining to write to the folks at home until he could strike it rich, but every year found him growing poorer, and now, old, feeble and poor, his great wish was to look once more upon his native hills—that he could not do so unless he was sent money enough upon which to return. Mr. Dillard read the letter to his wife and sons.

"We must send him the money," said the old man. So a cow and a mule were sacrificed and the money went on its mission across the continent. Several weeks' time brought another letter, in which the old man expressed his gratefulness for the kindness done him, but he was too ill to undertake the journey. After that no more was heard from him.

On Monday Dillard received a letter which recited that James McCurrie was dead; that he wished to test the fidelity of his sister's family; that their prompt response to his appeal had moved him, and that by his will his property in California, valued at $1,600,000, was willed in equal parts to his sister, her husband and their two sons.

The two young men passed through Atlanta to-night en route for California to take possession of the property, which they hope to shortly convert into cash, when they will return.

MONEY.

NEW YORK, October 10, 11 a. m.—The stock market was active and weak at the opening, first prices being from ⅛ to ⅝ per cent below the closing figures of Saturday, though St. Paul was a noted exception with an advance of ¼. The dealings were quite feverish in the first half-hour, and while prices generally made slight advances in the early sales, the advantage was not maintained, and the market quickly declined below the opening figures, St. Paul losing ⅞ per cent from the best price. A few of the active stocks, among which were Western Union, Reading, Lackawanna and Lake Shore, were remarkably well supported and sent but a slight fraction below the opening figures. The market later became more quiet and slowly advanced small fractions, and at 11 o'clock it was fairly active and firm at close to opening prices.

Noon—Money is easy at 4@5 per cent. Bar silver, 96. The stock market was fairly active and remained firm for some time after 11 o'clock, when advances of from ⅛ to ½ per cent were established, St. Paul and Reading showing most strength. The gains were quickly wiped out, however, and Western Union declined ⅝ per cent, while the market became dull and steady and at noon is quiet and steady to firm at close to opening figures. COMMERCE.

STOOD STILL.

The Government Report Fails to Affect the Market—Trade Light.

By Telegraph from Jones, McCormick & Kennett, Chicago, to the POST-DISPATCH.

CHICAGO, October 10.—There was not sufficient change in the Government report on wheat or in the visible supply to affect the market which opened steady, but neither side received encouragement in the way of orders, so that it simply stood still in the face of the neglect. The price sagged 72 to 72⅛ for December, rallying later on liberal bidding, but limited buying. It has been a scalpers' market from the start, commissions doing comparatively nothing. At this writing we see nothing to cause an advance. Larger receipts of corn than were anticipated have a depressing influence on the bulls' ardor, and later the prospect of heavy receipts to-morrow caused the local talent to unload, thus breaking the market. Corn has too many friends and we believe the small holders will have to be shaken before the market will have a healthy tone. Provisions higher, influenced by advance in hog market. At the close the break in corn induced a weak feeling. Trade light.

St. Louis Markets.

FORENOON SESSION—CLOSING 1 P. M.

Stock of wheat in store here decreased 115,000 bu and corn increased 46,000 bu during last week.——Late cables from United Kingdom markets indicate that the millers of that country are now competing to better advantage with American flours than for five years past and all their mills are running to full capacity on the cheap native wheats.——The New York Produce Exchange began their continuous session this morning from 10:30 a. m. to 3 p. m. to-day.——Later advices from San Francisco state that during the past week no wheat or flour charters have been made, and the list of ships loading consists of two of wheat and two of flour. As the exports of wheat and flour from July 1 to date only aggregate 6,245,900 bushels, or about 2,000,000 bushels more than the surplus left over from last year, it will be seen that there is yet almost the whole of the present season's surplus to be shipped.——It looks as though Charley Isaacs' prediction of a million bushel stock of oats here will be verified to-morrow. Col. Joe Sherry and Maj. Jim Hamlin are preparing a grand reception, (at the Exchange door) parade (across the street) and banquet (at Helery's) in honor of President Isaacs, if the stock reaches the million mark.——New York's stock of wheat in store and afloat decreased 154,413 bushels.——Minneapolis and St. Paul's stock increased 120,900 bushels, which was smaller than expected.——Private cables: To Fath, Ewald & Co.: "London wheat quiet and Liverpool dull; scarcely any buyers." To W. L. Green: "Liverpool wheat weaker in tone; corn strong and tending higher owing to small supply."——The first car of new corn this season came in Saturday from Iowa to the Grier Commission Company. It graded No. 4, as it was soft and sold by sample at 38c.——The first new corn last year was on October 19, and in 1885, on October 9.—Dan Byrnes of R. Cheeny & Co., says that Iowa is now shipping new corn to this market that will begin to arrive shortly. Large receipts of corn are looked for this week.——E. Goddard, the veteran miller, made his debut as a grandfather this morning, and he was the happiest man on the floor, as it was a boy.——Grouse, quail and pheasant will be in season on October 15.

—A. Dusard, just returned from a visit to Europe, says he took particular notice of the crops on the other side in the countries he traveled through and talked with all the farmers he saw. They told him that their wheat crop was as good as any they had had in twenty-five years, but oats were cut short by the drouth and not over half a potato crop would be raised. He refers to Germany, Belgium, Holland and Northern France.——Last year the visible supply increased 1,567,000 bu wheat; 152,000 bu corn, and 30,000 bu oats. The report for this week is as follows:

	Oct. 8, '87.	Oct. 1, '87.	Oct. 9, '86.
Wheat.......	30,980,852	30,597,777	52,787,435
Corn.......	7,385,756	7,087,448	13,577,642
Oats	5,321,405	5,177,636	4,995,446
Rye	342,443	321,967	539,678
Barley......	1,694,562	1,128,358	1,807,721

Wheat receipts were liberal and 11,000 bu in excess of same day last year, but the stock had fallen off and for the week showed 115,000 bu decrease. Public cables noted steady or firm markets on the other side, but all private advices indicated an easier feeling and a slacker demand in European markets. The rainy weather here and a slight advance in Chicago put a little more stiffening into the local market at the opening and 1-16@⅛c better was paid. Trading was small and listless, with not much demand, and during the early firmness, not much for sale either. Barnes and Fraley came in on a soft spot and sold 100,000 between them, Tom Carter taking half of it, but most sales were of five and ten lots. A rally of ¼c from the very lowest point on a smaller increase—384,000 bu—in the visible supply than had been estimated was soon followed by another relapse, the Government figures for a 450,000,000 bu crop causing the weakness. There was enough buying to prevent much of a decline, and the close was the same as Saturday's. Spot grades were higher and in good milling and shipping demand to extent of offerings. No. 2 red, 70¾c this side, 70⅞c in C. and St. L., 71⅜c E. side; No. 3 red, 63c in C. and St. L., 69½c in U, and later 69⅞c bid E. side; No. 4, 66c bid this side.

Corn was neglected most of the time and showed little change in value. Receipts were larger and the stock increased, a liberal movement to market was looked forward to and new corn was beginning to come in, and cables were strong, but all the markets on this side were without material change, and there was not enough speculation here to influence prices. Late in the session came the Government report, which, it was figured, placed the crop something above the 1,500,000,000 bu mark and this, with nearly 300,000 bu increase in the visible and a decline in Chicago caused an easier feeling. October held steady, but the other options declined, closing ¼c below Saturday, and May had pretty free sellers. Spot grades held up steadily, and even firmly in price, and all offerings sold quickly; No. 2 in largest supply and bought for export, orders and local account. No. 2, 40⅛c regular; 40¼c in U. and St. L.; 40⅜c in C.; No. 3, 39⅜c bid this, and 39⅝c east side; No. 4, 37c bid east side; No. 2 white, 45c in U.; 45½c bid for C.; No. 3 do, 43½c in St. L.

Oats—Futures were quiet and practically unchanged in price, as there was nothing new to influence the market and trading very small. Spot grades firm and the demand readily took all the offerings. No. 2, 24⅜c in St. L. and bid for C.; 24c for E. s.; No. 3, 23½c in St. L.

Rye—Firm. No. 2 sold track this side at 54c, and No. 3 east track at 52c; a small lot prime at 56½c.

Flour was still firm and there was a good inquiry for about all descriptions. The demand came from Southern, Eastern and export buyers Quotations were as follows: XX, $2.10@2.25; XXX, $2.35@2.45; family, $2.55@2.65; choice, $2.85@3; fancy, $3.25@3.40; extra do, $3.45@3.60; patents, $3.75@4. These prices are for lots on arrivals at the depot or levee; order lots higher.

Rye Flour—$2.95@3.05.

Cornmeal—$2.10@2.15; cream or pearl meal, grits and hominy, $3.25. Foregoing on orders delivered by dealers in lots to suit.

Bran strong and in demand. Sacked selling at mill at 66@68c.

Hay was quiet, but firm, the wet weather interfering with trade greatly. Sales ranged: Prairie, $7.50@11.50; mixed timothy, $10@13 for common to fancy, prime to fancy timothy, $13@16.50. East track stock 50c to $1 lower than this side.

Provisions dull, weak and declining. Lard alone showed strength, as it was scarce, prime steam selling relatively higher here than in any other market. The order demand was moderate for meats, and mainly for bacon. Cured dry salt c'ribs were offered to arrive at 7.45c c. and f. here. CATTLE—The general market was quoted about steady to-day, and trading was upon a basis of last weeks' prices. Receipts were liberal, but the proportion of really good cattle was no larger than usual. There was some inquiry after city butchers, and retailers had satisfied their wants, but little actual trading, the unsettled state of the weather having rather a depressing effect upon the market. Prices did not show any change one way or the other, but were quoted steady for decent to good, fat cattle, and though uneven for the common grades they were not quotably changed.

Good to choice native steers, $4.10@4.75; fair to medium do, $3.50@3 90; common, $2.25@3.00; fair to good butchers' steers, $2.50@3.15, common do., $1.50@2.25; fair to good cows and heifers, $1.75@2.40; common, $1.10@1.65; fair to good feeders, nominal; stockers, nominal; bulls, $1.25@2; milk cows and calves, nominal; veal calves, car lots, $4.50@6.50 per head; fair to good grass Texans, $2.50@2.85; fair to choice corn-fed Texans, $3.00@$3.45; common to good Texas cows, $1.10@2.25.

HOGS—The few loads on the market were quickly picked up at prices that will average 10 to 15c higher than the closing figures of last week. Packers and butchers were well represented, but the former were unable to do much of anything owing to the very light receipts although they claimed if given a chance they would have willingly competed with butchers, who entered the market and obtained the cream of the offerings by paying from $4.60 to $4.75. To packers the few loads that changed hands brought from $4.30 to $4.60 for rough to good heavy. There were no shipping orders on the market, and the bulk of the trading was in city butchers' accounts at the figures given above. Receipts were very light and a clearance was made in about two hours after the market opened. The strong tone developed at this time continued all through the day, the market closing firm with butchers quoted at $4.65@4.85 for fair to best heavy. Fair to best packing, $4.30@4.60. Yorkers nominal at $4.40@4.55.

My Dear Sir:

We'll make you an elegant Winter Overcoat for $27.50; made to order, fit guaranteed, best style and finish. D. CRAWFORD & Co.

A Lady Comes All the Way From France to Sell Her Lot on Olive Street.

At noon to-morrow there will be sold from the Court-house steps a house and lot in the busiest part of Olive street, which like every other movement on this busy thoroughfare has attracted considerable attention.

The owner is Mrs. Giraud, the estimable lady who had so much trouble in getting back her husband's will from the French officials. The breath it appears had hardly left the body of her venerable life partner when a Commissionaire appeared and seized all of his papers, and it required an American Consul-General, a French Minister, one French and two American lawyers and three months of correspondence to get back the will. Mr. Wagner of the Probate Court can tell an interesting story in this connection about the red tape in France, whose tangles and complications are burning scarlet compared with the tame article on this side the water.

BALTIMORE'S POLITICAL RING.

Character of the Men Leading the Much-Needed Reform Movement.

By Telegraph to the POST-DISPATCH.

BALTIMORE, Md., October 10.—The only argument which the ring can produce against the exposure of their methods by the WORLD is that it is a "base slander against the city," overlooking the important fact that the exposure has received the unqualified indorsement of some of the best, oldest and most respectable Democrats in the city. The men who are behind the Reform League need no recommendation from the ring; they ask for no political preferment. Their only object is the extirpation of the present corrupt political system. "If it is necessary to defame the city by exposing the corruption," said Mr. Irving, one of the bright young lawyers who have enlisted in the movement, "the city will have to be defamed, that's all."

"The only way to purify the city," said Mr. S. T. Wallis, "is by publicity of the most widespread character."

The reform movement is handicapped for the want of newspaper support. The most conspicuous of its members are the last men wantonly to defame a city or a community. The most prominent is S. T. Wallis, who is now 71 years old, and for many years has been closely identified with the reform movement. No one can question his loyalty as a Democrat or as a citizen of Baltimore. For the ring to charge that such a citizen as Mr. Wallis was governed by a desire to defame the city, shows to what desperation they are moved. Mr. J. Hall Pleasants is another of the most prominent leaders in the movement. He is 65 years of age and acknowledged to be one of Baltimore's best citizens, as he is one of the oldest merchants in the city. He is a man of the strictest integrity. He is the President of the Civil-Service Reform Association of Baltimore. J. K. Cowan is another Democrat who has abandoned the regular party and the ring, because he found the company too corrupt for an honest man to be allied with. No one but the ring questions his loyalty to Baltimore, and his desire to lift the fair fame of the city from the grasp of the ballot-box stuffers and the thugs who have suddenly become so zealous to maintain its integrity spotless. Mr. Cowen is one of the ablest lawyers in Maryland and one of the most attractive and convincing orators. Col. Charles Marshall, nephew of the great Chief Justice of the United States and chief of staff to Gen. Lee, is another of the many eminent citizens that the ring accuses of attempting to defame the city. Mr. Marshall's Democracy will stand test with that of any men who are now crying loudest that Baltimore is being slandered. Col. Marshall expresses the greatest affection for Baltimore, but does not hesitate when the issue is made with silence and further tenure of the ring on one side and publicity to the scandalous condition of the city and eradication of the ring on the other, to select the latter. According to the ring this is not patriotic. The Reform League is very much encouraged by the publicity given to its efforts for better government, and it has been assured of many recruits this week, with promises of more.

HARMONY.

The Effect of Mr. Saltonstall's Dinner to the Democratic Leaders.

By Telegraph to the POST-DISPATCH.

BOSTON, October 10.—The story of the dinner given by Collector Saltonstall to the Democratic chieftains last Thursday was read here yesterday with undiminished eagerness. The politicians were especially interested. Coming as it did after Editor Taylor's dinner at the Quincy House, to the same gentlemen and several others, the Saltonstall dinner was regarded as being peculiarly significant. "It all goes to show," said a prominent Democrat, "that the Democracy in Massachusetts is this year better organized for a fight than it has been in many years. The vote last year was close enough to warrant the Democrats in the belief that harmonious action by the party and a good clean man at the head of the ticket will place the party in power. When Mr. Saltonstall, representing as he does the Silk-stocking element in the party and, as Collector of the Port, wielding a very large influence among the voting classes, holds out the olive branch of peace to the leaders, it may be taken as a very good sign that harmony is to be the word from now till election day. His dinner to the party leaders was undoubtedly a sign that he is a Lovering man, and you know on that question we have all along reckoned him among the so-called kickers against the Lynn Congressman. He was very indignant at the way his name was drawn into the Worcester Convention, and I have it on excellent authority that he announced his determination to cut aloof from the Democracy forever. Saltonstall is the best intentioned and most upright man in the world. But his training has been such that he has mingled but little, if at all, with the people and least of all has he mingled with the politicians of his party. His business experience amounts to nothing, and when he went into office he was to a large degree harrassed and annoyed by the perplexing duties he was called on to perform. Such a thing as making changes in the offices did not occur to him until pressure was brought to bear on him and then his natural deep sense of pride manifested itself and he rebelled. Why, Gen. Corse, who was then on the State Committee, used to tell him what was expected of him, day after day. Saltonstall, however, thought that whatever changes he should make were necessarily to be ordered from the White House, but of course Mr. Cleveland could hardly adopt such a course. He left Mr. Saltonstall to drive his own cart without other interference or recommendation. Thus you see that Mr. Saltonstall antagonized the working Democrats and hence their attack on him at Worcester, but being the good-natured and courteous old gentleman that he is, when his indignation had passed away he invited the party leaders to his own house and there listened attentively to a lesson on practical politics and just what that is worth to any political party. That he profited by the lesson I have no doubt, and I should not be surprised if results proved that assumption."

THE EXPOSITION DRAWS IN BOTH GOOD AND BAD WEATHER.

A Fine Attendance in the Building To-Day—The Week to Be Devoted to Different Composers—Selections for To-Night's Musical Programme—Notes.

People visit the Exposition when the weather is fair, and strange to say they also visit it when the weather is bad. Now this is a strange fact, for people ordinarily will not go out to visit any amusement, no matter how attractive, when the weather is bad. Of course, if there is some big attraction in town like grand opera and people have bought their tickets in advance, bad weather will not interfere with the projected visit, but the making a snap visit would not be considered for a moment. In the matter of attendance the Exposition seems metaphorically to stretch out its sheltering arms, and people seem satisfied to go there and invariably come away pleased. Such was the case to-day, for the managers could not complain of the attendance. Another fact noticeable was that all the visitors have not left town yet, in fact there were large numbers of them present. These people seem to have come to St. Louis on business as well as pleasure and in the Exposition they seem to find a gigantic sample room by which they can make up their minds as to just exactly what they want to buy and are not put to the trouble of visiting various places to view objects one at a time. Again they have a means of direct comparison between articles of the same class, which they would not otherwise have, unless they could manage to keep a vivid recollection of the same article that they saw in some other business house.

Gilmore this week will give the public a chance to judge of the relative merits of composers of various countries as well as to judge of the merits of the composers of each country by themselves. The programme to-day contains the works of New York composers only and it is gratifying to note that some of the best compositions to be presented are the works of members of the band. America does not have much of a reputation as a musical country, though some works of sterling merit have been produced by Americans, either by birth or adoption. Composers in the East have better opportunities for securing hearings for their works than those of the West, yet St. Louis will be enabled to show that she has some young composers of rare merit who deserve the highest recognition and praise.

The following is the programme for this evening from 7 to 10 o'clock, with a one hour intermission:

PART I.

1. Overture—"American Festival" ....Dudley Buck
Founded on the National air, "The Star Spangled Banner."
2. Polka Brilliante, for Clarionet—"The Belle of St. Louis" ....Louis Stockigt
Performed by the author.
3. Arietta—(Morceaux de Salon)..Frederick Brandeis
4. Grand Descriptive Fantasia, entitled "A Trip to Manhattan Beach"....Francesco Fanciulli
Description—Break of the day—sunrise—waking up—hurrying to the boat—barcarole down the harbor—rush for the cars—railroad ride—glorious day at the beach—gambolling on the sand—sea nymphs' dance—imitation fire-works, which call forth exclamations of delight—after which all return to "Home, Sweet Home."

PART II.

5. Lullaby—Chinese Cradle Song....Charles Puerner
6.—Galop—"Victoire" ....Homer N. Bartlett
1. March Triomphale ....Rudolph Aronson
2. Romanza for saxophone—"Fairy Dream," Niccolo Norrito
Mr. E. A. Lefebre.
3. Bagatelle ....Wm. K. Bassford
4. Waltz Song—"Etelka"........Mme. Murio-Celli
5. Solo for petit clarionet—"Fantasia Hungarian" ....Matus
Performed by the author, Matus Ur.
6. Gavotte—"Enthusiasm"........Julius Bernstein
7. March—"Twenty-second Regiment.P. S. Gilmore

Notes.

Gilmore is a composer.

Try the new crop of He-No tea.

The Post-office does not do a land-office business.

Drummond's "J. T." brand is the favorite with tobacco chewers.

A number of members of the band are masters of the science of the theory of music.

Van Houton's Cocoa, the pleasantest beverage in the world, may be found at A. Moll's display.

Good things always have imitations, and He-No tea is not an exception to the rule. Get only the genuine.

Frank Wendell has a forty-eight-hour notice to shave his mustache. It must go, as a young lady issued the order.

The military will not have special days this year. There are plenty of special days on hand but no militiamen.

He-No tea is decorated with medals for purity and quality, but the best prize is the unqualified endorsement of the public.

The wax soldiers on duty around the building are beginning to wonder when the corporal of the guard is coming with the relief.

To use a common phrase, there are no flies on Scholten's pictures. They combine fidelity with artistic beauty and fine finish.

The charming collection of beautiful articles which surround the bride of the Mermod & Jaccard Jewelry Co.'s "Bride's Dream" attracts fully as much attention as the bride herself and her problems.

No one, not excepting the girl who resembles Mrs. Cleveland, has a wider circle of admirers than the pretty milkmaid of the Illinois Milk Company's display.

The address of the pretty bride of the Mermod & Jaccard Jewelry Co.'s "Bride's Dream" is Box 234, Exposition Post-office. No billets doux are allowed.

A tobacco user would have to search far and wide to find better tobacco than is contained in Drummond's Horse Shoe or his Natural Leaf. They are both superior in quality and manufacture.

Mr. Carl Schraubstadter has the distinction of providing one of the most interesting displays in the building. The process of making pictures on the Star engraving plates is always watched by crowds of people.

The invitation to suggest a name for the bride of the Mermod & Jaccard Jewelry Company's "Bride's Dream" is extended only to young ladies, but any one may send in a guess at the number in the envelope and compete for the four handsome prizes offered.

HORNERVILLE, Neb., Feb. 8, '83.

J. F. Smith & Co.: Gents—Thank you for sending the Bile Beans. Can say of experience they are the best remedy for what they are recommended that I have ever used. I say again, thank you. Inclosed I hand you $1 to pay for the four bottles sent.

Jimmy Moore, a politician of the Fourth Ward, cut Ed. Conway in the thigh yesterday evening. Conway was visiting Moore's son when the father objected to the lavishness of the liquid entertainment. He says Conway attempted to assault him and he only defended himself.

E. T. Grether was arrested last night for firing a revolver in John C. Fleming's saloon at Sixteenth and Gratiot streets. When Officer O'Connor arrived Grether fired three shots at him. The officer emptied his revolver in return, and after a long chase succeeded in arresting Grether who is a son of the well-known real estate agent.

Dim Owens, a colored burglar, was discovered in Capt. R. F. Sass' residence, No. 5838 Etzel avenue, early yesterday morning. The Captain gave chase and the negro escaped by dashing through a window carrying the sash and glass with him. Yesterday morning Owens was found prostrated from loss of blood, in a field near the house and was placed under arrest. His thigh and abdomen were badly lacerated in his flight through the window.

"Little Puck" Makes a Hit at the Grand—Other Attractions—Notes.

"Little Puck," the adaptation of Anstey's "Vice Versa" by four comedy and farce writers was presented at the Grand last night by Frank Daniels and his company.

The circumstance on which the book and the piece is founded, is purely fanciful, and is without the bounds of possibility, but on the other hand, although impossible, it serves as a capital illustration of the weakness of human nature and is in itself thoroughly amusing. The plot is doubtless familiar to nearly everyone. A successful stockbroker, whose attention is chiefly taken up with financial and worldly matters, has a mischievous boy who is one of the worries of his life and whom he governs entirely through the principal of a boy's school, who is one of the relentless and strict kind.

The plots of the play and of the book differ as to details only. The stock-broker is inclined to be fast and has sundry engagements with fair ballet dancers, but outwardly he is a pillar of society. His boy has been at home on a vacation and the father is about to send him back to school with a letter to the teachers to dress him down with a good whipping. The broker has come into possession of the stock of a dime museum in which is the image of an ancient idol, possessing the power, when held in the right hand, to grant one wish. The old man in an evil moment, while holding the idol and without thinking of its power wishes he was a boy again just like his son. The tranformation takes place and the son being entreated to wish his father back again to his old place, instead wishes he were a stock broker like his father. The success of this wish reverses the places of father and son.

That the idea is amusing there can be no doubt. The old man is a boy with a man's feelings. He still tries to assert his authority and put on the airs of a stockbroker, but is treated as a child and goes to school to get the benefit of his own instructions to the teacher. His son Billy's sweetheart hugs and kisses him, the bully of the school whips him and he has a boy's experience all through. On the other hand, the son has a glorious time and turns the family mansion into a dance-hall. Out of this reversal an immense amount of fun is worked.

With the funny idea as a basis, four playwrights have concentrated their brains on it. The lines are fairly bright and the plot is developed in a clever way. The interest is sustained, and the amusement after the piece is well started is unrestrained. Frank Daniels' reputation with the public lies in his Old Sport in "A Rag Baby." In that he developed a fund of humor arising largely out of peculiarities of speeh, expression and manner which was his own. The same peculiarities appear and are depended upon in the part of the stockbroker. They suit the stockbroker and are entertaining in the role. Mr. Daniels has the burden of the entertaining to do, and that he succeeds was proved by the laughter evoked last evening.

The company contains some clever members. Bessie Sanson, as Miranda, the son's sweetheart, was not strong in the music, but she was bright and clever. Rillie Deaves as Clara Giltedge, a pronounced girl of the period, was an undoubted success, having one masculine make-up that was swell and one figure revealer which was immense. Robert Frazer as the butler, Louie K. Quinten as Tabitha, Geo. Woodward as Dr. Savage, and the others were satisfactory. The music is bright and the juvenile ballet is an attractive feature. Little Rosa Gautier danced with skill, and Master Gustavus Sohlke gave some remarkably agile and clever grotesque dancing. The audience was large, and the piece was received with enthusiasm.

The romantic charm of "My Geraldine" is acknowledged by all who have seen it. The play appeals to tender sentiments and arouses the gentler emotions, while furnishing excitement enough to maintain the interest from beginning to end. On the other hand, there are elements in it of fine Irish comedy. At the Olympic last evening it drew its tribute of tears and laughter from the audience, not any more by its own strength than by the skill of the admirable company presenting it. Mrs. Dion Boucicault renews acquaintance with those who knew her of old and makes herself known to those who never saw her. She has an open sesame into the affections of the public in her art. By her intensity and quiet, artistic, forceful methods, she won the audience completely as May Carroll, the suffering mother of Geraldine. It was genuine art and deserved its reward.

There was scarcely a weak member of the cast and the performance was rounded, artistic, enjoyable. Miss Lavinia White brought to the part of Geraldine beauty and a girlish sweetness and grace which were captivating. Eugene O'Rourke and Charles Warren as Terrence and Teddy Cregan developed every bit of Irish humor in the parts and made hits in both singing and acting. T. F. O'Malley was an effective Michael McShane, and Aubrey Boucicault as Larry Lone did a clever bit of work. Of the rest of the cast, including Mrs. Harry Bloodgood, Duncan B. Harrison, Harry J. Morgan T. J. Morgan and Miss Polly Poland-King, little that is not satisfactory in a minor way can be said.

J. H. Wallick's "Cattle King" kept a good audience at the People's entertained. The adventures and narrow escapes of Bob Taylor, the "Cattle King," and his final triumphs over the machinations of Mexican and American villains aroused the enthusiasm of the house. He was supported by Mary Wallick, as the heroine; L. H. Brander, as the murderous Don Pedro, and others. The feats of his four wonderful acting horses were special features of the performance.

Manager Hogan of Pope's has brought his house into favor, and large opening audiences are the rule now. Yesterday afternoon and evening were not exceptions to the rule, and "Her Atonement" was given to enthusiastic appreciation. The company presenting it with Jean Delmar in her star part of Johnny Springfield, the bootblack; Gussie De Forest as Martha West, Bessie Clifton as Mrs. Morton, J. W. Murray as Col. Swift, Frank Karrington as James Morton, W. D. Chaflin as Charles Le Roy, and others, were cordially received.

"Hilarity" a new farce-comedy by Chas. Loder, was produced at the Standard with the author in the principal role of a German sausagemaker and musician. The piece is constructed only to make fun and is brightened by a host of variety and specialty acts. Mr. Loder gave songs and dances, and specialties were given by Leonard and Mullen, Charles and Gertie Seaman, Charles Bryant, Gus Saville and Retlow and Olton.

Notes.

The "Last Days of Pompeii" will be given to-night unless the weather should prove to be too inclement.

A new programme will be given at the Casino to-night, and will be continued for the week.

The "Battles of Chattanooga" at the Cyclorama may be viewed day or night.

Jack Gallagher, who is keeping the boys straight at Pope's, was presented with a handsome gift by the management for his admirable handling of the crowds last week.

Mr. W. R. Hayden, who is at present managing "Little Puck," is in the city with the company. He says that he did all in his power to make "Rosedale" a go, but that it was a failure, and as Haworth refused to produce the "Wife of Miletus" the season had to close.

THE CAMPAIGN IN OHIO.

Mr. David Okey Predicts That Foraker Will Be Defeated.

By Telegraph to the POST-DISPATCH.

WASHINGTON, D. C., October 10.—David Okey, who conducted the Castle Garden investigation, is a native of Ohio, and one of the most efficient men in the Government's employ.

"I can not discuss my report," said Mr. Okey yesterday, "without Secretary Fairchild's permission, but I learn from my friends in Ohio that Foraker is liable to be beaten. The normal Republican majority in Ohio is about 10,000. We have to overcome that before we can hope for success. Gov. Foraker has worked the flag issue and snub episode until a reaction has set in against him. He will lose more votes than he will gain on those tactics. Judge Thurman has taken the stump for Powell, and the Democrats are working night and day together with considerable enthusiasm. The party has never been more united, and it is not too much to predict that Foraker will be found in the minority when the votes are counted."
